Chapter 1: Enduring Labor Values

PREAMBLE

We acknowledge that Australian Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples have the oldest continual cultural history in the world, dating back over 60,000 years, and we believe that their physical and spiritual connection to Country forms the foundation on which Labor's acknowledgement and respect is built.

Queensland holds a special place in the history of the Australian Labor Party. When striking shearers met under the Tree of Knowledge in Barcaldine in 1891, they ensured that our state would forever be linked to the genesis of our party. They cemented two core Labor values, a fair go for all, and standing up for each other. Labor was founded as a collective for the common good.

For more than 120 years since, Labor, in partnership with our great trade union movement, has continued to stand up for workers' rights and for a dignified life for all Queenslanders.

OUR VALUES

- 1.1 We believe in the dignity of work, and that every member of our society has a fundamental right to work so that they can support themselves, their families and their dependents, and enjoy the quality of life they deserve. We believe in working together, a collective approach, to achieving the best for all Queenslanders.
- 1.2 We value every member of our society – no matter their location, race, ethnicity, sex, gender, gender identity, intersex status, sexual orientation, age, religion, ability or educational qualification. We believe in, and work to achieve, a society that supports equality, acceptance and inclusion and a society that shuns discrimination. We believe firmly in social justice.
- 1.3 We believe in a just and reconciled Queensland, where Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures are valued, respected and affirmed across all areas of society.

We believe in ending racism.

We believe that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples should have the same life chances and choices as other Queenslanders and the length and quality of your life should not be determined by your racial background.

We believe in self-determination for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and working together in closing the gap in life expectancy, education, health and employment outcomes.

- 1.4 We recognise Australia as a multicultural society which supports and advocates for Australians from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds. We believe that Australia derives its strength from its diversity, and thus we promote equality and inclusion of all cultures within our society.
- 1.5 We will always stand up for fairness. Our party was founded on the important principle that everybody deserves a fair go in life.

We believe that a society's quality can be measured by how it treats its' most vulnerable people and that government has an important role to play in creating a more equal society, in which people are treated with respect and compassion. We believe in government that aims to lift people up to achieve the very best that they can, that appeals to the best characteristics of human kind.

- 1.6 We believe in building a society, not just an economy. We believe that government plays an important role in providing the economic framework, infrastructure and services our society needs to build a prosperous future. We believe government has a responsibility to ensure every Queenslander has the same opportunities to achieve their goals and maximise their potential, regardless of where they live or their life circumstances. We believe the public, through their government, should own and control vital assets and services. We believe no-one should be left behind.
- 1.7 We believe in a society where people care about each other, where we create and engage with each other through our communities. We believe community engagement enriches our lives. We believe in government that genuinely consults with and works to strengthen our engagement in local communities.
- 1.8 We believe in treating our natural environment with respect and that government policy should be directed at creating and maintaining a clean and healthy environment, including strong protections for our flora and fauna, for the current generation and for generations to follow.
- 1.9 We celebrate Labor's historical and continuing link to country Queensland and are committed to ensuring rural and regional Queenslanders have access to a good education, well-paid and rewarding employment and access to affordable health care and other services, regardless of where they live. Queensland Labor will draft a new Chapter for insertion into the Queensland Labor State Platform to articulate and address issues that are specific to rural, regional, and remote Queensland communities.
- Queensland is a diverse State with many communities in regional, rural and remote parts of our State and as such Queensland Labor will ensure that its policies are at all times paramount for these communities as regional, rural and remote Queensland plays an integral contribution to the Qld economy.
- 1.10 We believe in the importance of key democratic principles including the primacy of Parliament, the separation of powers and the independence of the judiciary.
- 1.11 We believe in executive government that is open, transparent and accountable to the people, and an independent electoral system founded on the basis of one vote, one value.
- 1.12 We believe in hope. Our hope for a better life for all, our hope for a more caring and compassionate society, our hope for a prosperous future for all is the motivation that ensures we act to bring about change.

Chapter 2: A Strong Economy – Creating jobs and opportunities for all

LABOR VALUES

Labor believes that to achieve our vision of economic prosperity for all Queenslanders our economic policy must address the following key principles.

Strong Public Finances

- 2.1 Labor supports an economically responsible and prudent approach to managing the Queensland Budget leading to a sustainable long-term fiscal position. Responsibly managing our state's finances will drive positive business sentiment, to deliver a stronger Queensland economy.
- 2.2 Labor will ensure Queensland is protected from both internal and external economic risks through the use of internationally proven risk-management policies. We support a combination of public and private efforts to grow the economy and will apply economic stimulus when circumstances require.
- 2.3 Labor is committed to long-term economic planning, especially in regional Queensland.

Having a long-term vision for the economic growth of our state will enable Queensland to deal with the economic cycles around major projects starting and ending.

A Fair and Equitable Federal Funding Model

- 2.4 Labor supports Queensland receiving a fair and equitable share of federal revenues from the Australian Government to ensure the sustainability and growth of the Queensland economy.
- 2.5 We believe Queensland should play a leading role in national economic debate and policy development. We must not only have a fair and sustainable model of distribution of national resources to ensure growth in the economy but also recognise areas of competitive advantage our state possesses. This can be achieved only through a stronger partnership between the Queensland Government and the various other governments that make up the Australian Commonwealth.

A Tax System that is Fair, Straightforward and Sustainable

- 2.6 Where it will benefit Queensland, the taxation system of Queensland must be simplified and rationalised with Commonwealth taxes to encourage growth in the economy.

Any changes must be fair, straightforward and sustainable. Simplifying the system in this way reduces red tape and makes Queensland a more commercially attractive and competitive place to do business.

A Reduction in Household Budget Pressures

- 2.7 Labor recognises that government policies have an impact on household budgets.
- 2.8 Labor supports the development of clear strategies that address the causes and consequences of household budget pressures. Partnering with other governments, industry leaders, trade unions, charities and other stakeholders, a Labor Government will help reduce these relative costs to levels that are sustainable for Queensland households over the long term.

- 2.9 A Labor Government will make economic policy decisions that will protect our quality of life for future generations.

Encouraging and Attracting Investment

- 2.10 Labor believes strong domestic and international investment in our state will encourage entrepreneurialism and enable all Queenslanders to benefit from a growing economy. Labor supports greater access to capital for investment, to encourage new ventures and enable small to medium sized business to grow and prosper. Labor also supports the growth of large businesses as these businesses contribute to our state's low unemployment and strong economic position and tourism.
- 2.11 Labor is committed to building a diverse economy that supports a broad range of industries, including manufacturing and will encourage and promote government co-invest opportunities in the manufacturing sector to support secure manufacturing jobs throughout Queensland.
- 2.12 In recognition of its commitment to supporting the manufacturing industry and its importance in creating secure jobs and economic growth, Labor will create a ministerial portfolio for manufacturing.

Strategic Use of Public Resources to Stimulate and Encourage Growth

- 2.13 Labor believes a targeted and focused approach to directing public resources toward growing the Queensland economy is essential to the long-term future of the State. Therefore, to achieve the most efficient and effective utilisation of public resources, the Government should consider the outcomes of the Coaldrake review into the public sector workforce to update the fiscal policy settings in consultation with relevant stakeholders, to suit a modern economy and workforce. The new policy settings will provide incentives to industry in Queensland, where necessary and where there is a clear competitive advantage, will ensure our industries are able to compete sustainably at national and international levels

Labor rejects and will eliminate the use of outsourcing or the use of labour hire in the public sector across state and local government levels and service delivery, including GOCs, and statutory authorities and other associated entities. Labour hire and contracting arrangements should be utilised as a supplement to a permanent workforce and existing labour hire arrangements shall be reviewed within 6 months. Labor in government will ensure that industrial instruments reflect these values and will work with unions and employees to ensure outcomes that are consistent with Labor principles in this regard.

- 2.14 Labor in government will ensure that funding arrangements for Local Government and its suppliers meet the requirements of the Qld Government Procurement Policy (QPP) which will provide direct employment and reject the use of outsourcing but will restore public confidence back into Local Government with the QPP driving probity, good governance, transparency and accountability.
- 2.15 Labor will seek to maximise public sector employment, as opposed to outsourcing, in the provision of government services, particularly in regional Queensland.

A Strong Culture of Research and Innovation for New Products and Services

- 2.16 Labor believes there is a role for government in helping to enable individuals and industry to pursue innovation that delivers new products and services for both Queenslanders and international markets. Labor supports the establishment of industries around new innovation and the services economy that will deliver the jobs of the future and diversify Queensland's economic base.
- 2.17 Labor will build an economy for Queensland that exports the products of our intelligence, creativity and business capabilities, not one based on the cheapest hourly rate for our labour. A Labor Government will foster links between science, business and industry to encourage innovation to promote commercial outcomes.

High Employment, Workforce Participation and Workforce Planning

- 2.18 Labor believes in working towards full employment in Queensland, by providing opportunities for all Queenslanders who are able to participate in our economy and work towards reshoring work that has gone overseas.

Opportunities for employment will be generated only where there is an environment that stimulates growth in current and new competitive industries across the state.

- 2.19 Labor believes high employment and workforce participation is possible only when employers and employees collaborate for the common good. Respectful communication and compromise between employer and employee is the key to building profitable and sustainable businesses, the backbone of an economy that is globally competitive and growing. Labor has successfully facilitated this collaboration in the past and it is the only political party that can and will do this again.
- 2.20 Labor believes in ensuring Queenslanders receive a fair day's pay for a fair day's work, protection while at work, and the ability to access further skills for career development.
- 2.21 Labor supports workforce planning to identify potential areas of skills' shortages and demand, and that this planning be used to inform course and program development in training organisations connected to the relevant industry.
- 2.22 Labor understands that enabling groups within the community to participate fully in the workforce is of economic benefit to us all and supports initiatives and targets that will increase participation for women and other underrepresented or disadvantaged groups.

Employment Based Training and Apprenticeships

- 2.23 Labor believes that government has a responsibility to use its spending power and market influence to ensure that training and the number of apprenticeship opportunities are enforced and adhered to. Government should be a leader in this respect which includes creating apprenticeship and training across Queensland.

Labor believes that government employment of apprentices delivers important outcomes for young people, particularly in the regions, and is an essential service for the purposes of trade based education and training.

- 2.24 Labor acknowledges that government has a critical role to play in the provision of employment-based training and apprenticeships opportunities for our youth and understands that providing these opportunities is an integral part of creating a strong economy.

- 2.25 In consultation with unions and industry, Labor will establish through its procurement policy mandatory quotas for apprentices and trainees on government funded work, and for those employers who wish to tender for government work, in order to create a skills base that meets the needs of the economy.

A Strong Corporate Governance Culture in Both the Public and Private Sector

- 2.26 For Queensland to attract investment from both local and international companies, our state must be considered a safe and secure place to do business through a transparent and actively managed culture of strong corporate governance.

The perception of unnecessary red tape can constrain and discourage business growth, so a Labor Government will work to implement a clear risk-management framework to provide the most efficient solution to protect and grow Queensland.

- 2.27 Labor is committed to ensuring that government procurement is governed by the principles of probity, accountability and transparency and delivers both value for money for taxpayers and benefits for local communities.
- 2.28 Labor believes the appointment and promotion of individuals should be based on their merit, not on their political affiliation or connections. Labor encourages local candidates of merit to be appointed to regional boards.
- 2.29 Labor believes our economic future depends on our local and global environment being healthy and robust. Climate change is an increasingly urgent challenge, and it must be tackled head on. Labor commits to working with unions and industry to transition the economy to a sustainable, low carbon economy as quickly as possible.
- 2.30 Labor supports the responsible usage of our natural resources, including those impacted by agricultural, mining, tourism, manufacturing and other industries. We are committed to integrating environmentally sustainable development into economic decision making, and climate impacts, to ensure that all Queenslanders will share in the economy of the future.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 2.31 Labor believes in improving the lives of all Queenslanders by growing our state's economy while providing the conditions that give each of us the opportunity to reach our full potential. Labor in Queensland believes government has a role to play in enabling both economic growth and opportunity for all.
- 2.32 Labor believes in building a society, not just an economy. Labor believes that government has a critical role to play in the provision of reliable and affordable essential services such as health, education, emergency services, water, public transport and electricity to the Queensland community. In instances where the government owns or operates services, assets or infrastructure, Labor commits to retaining these in public ownership during government and rejects privatisation of essential services in any form.
- 2.33 A Labor Government will be there for Queenslanders during good times and bad. Labor will be there to help grow jobs and facilitate appropriate investment in our economy, but we'll also be there to help when times are tough. Labor will provide support for those who are unemployed or facing disadvantage and help them get back on their feet.

- 2.34 Labor’s vision is to build a strong, efficient and diverse Queensland economy that is capable of supporting full employment, delivering higher living standards and eliminating poverty.
- Labor will create the economic climate for people to transform their aspirations into reality.
- 2.35 Labor believes that government should own, on behalf of its people, important infrastructure and services to:
- secure government revenue and keep personal taxes fair
 - provide essential services
 - provide options to stimulate employment and economic growth.
- 2.36 Labor holds these values because we believe the market, left entirely to its own devices, cannot support full employment nor distribute wealth equitably to end economic disadvantage. Markets of themselves do not serve people – people serve people. If our economy is to reach its full potential and Queenslanders are to be supported during good times and bad, then there must be an ongoing role for government as the ‘do-er’ in the economy, not just the enabler.
- 2.37 Labor recognises the importance of maximising opportunities for local companies to compete for government business, as this strengthens local industry and secures jobs for local people. Labor believes that local content should be supported and will advance procurement policies that support Queensland jobs.
- 2.38 Labor believes employees should always have a choice about where they and their families live and work, including to work and live in mining communities in regional Queensland.
- 2.39 Labor recognises the contributions past and present made by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Queenslanders to our strong economy. Labor believes in maximising opportunities for the participation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Queenslanders in our state’s future economic growth.
- 2.40 Labor commits to progressively increasing Indigenous training and employment opportunities in Closing the Gap initiatives, in its own departmental Indigenous recruitment policies and through incentives to encourage private sector Indigenous employment, including maximising Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander training and employment opportunities.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 2.41 Labor is the party that creates jobs, not cuts them. In government, we do this by navigating the complex national and international economic environment, balancing competition, encouraging innovation and efficiency, promoting economic stability and supporting consumer protection through strong leadership and responsible economic management. A Labor Government will bring together all members of the community who are directly and indirectly involved in the economy, to build a stronger future for all Queenslanders.
- 2.42 Queensland in the 21st Century is a place vastly different from that of last century. Our competitive economic advantage now lies in our capacity to value-add and our access to key markets in the Asia-Pacific Century. The Labor Governments will focus on economic policies that share the economic benefits of the 21st century with all Queenslanders.
- 2.43 Labor believes that good governance and transparency requires the membership of government boards to include people with knowledge, skills and expertise relevant to the board.

Labor will ensure that, in appointing members to government boards and authorities:

- Boards of government businesses have industrial relations experience from the relevant industry to ensure that the government is a model employer, and
- Boards to oversee employment standards, industry operations or professional standards have representatives of employees from the relevant industry.

Labor will ensure that each round of appointments is monitored to ensure that these skill requirements are being promoted.

- 2.44 Labor's new Queensland Government Procurement Policy (QPP) must be adhered and complied with across all Government departments and agencies which will deliver consistent, transparent and sustainable procurement outcomes across Queensland as well as improved local content outcomes, particularly in regional and remote communities.
- 2.45 Wherever public resources are required for new energy infrastructure, and particularly renewables, Labor will ensure that specifications include minimum requirements for local content and manufacturing.
- 2.46 Labor will ensure that government and local government procurement is transacted with transparency and accountability. Labor will focus on increased capability, capacity and probity for the government and local government, and its suppliers. It will ensure that not only does the state and local communities achieve value for money, but that our buying power is leveraged to achieve sustainable and social outcomes for all Queenslanders.
- 2.47 Labor will responsibly manage our revenue and expenditure to grow our budget while controlling our spending.

Business and the wider community will be encouraged and assisted to apply the principles of energy efficiency and eco-efficiency for both economic and environmental reasons.

Energy Queensland will be encouraged to facilitate the export of services related to renewable energy, energy efficiency and eco-efficiency alone and in collaboration with the private sector.

- 2.48 Labor will deliver additional infrastructure for Queensland. Labor will explore additional sources for the funding of infrastructure, such as encouraging the investment of Queensland superannuation in Queensland projects, while upholding return on investment requirements.

Labor will help small business in all sectors achieve scale, share resources and enter new markets by encouraging cooperatives, mutuals, business networks and other ways of working together.

- 2.49 Labor will provide incentives for innovation. Labor recognises the digital revolution and the power of knowledge-intensive industries to grow our economy. We will continue to diversify our economic base and encourage growth industries such as high-end manufacturing, tropical expertise and tertiary education of overseas students. Through research and industry encouragement, Labor will continue to develop a knowledge-based economy that supports meaningful and sustainable job opportunities. Focus areas include medicine, engineering, science, agriculture, mining, construction, education and tourism.
- 2.50 Labor will progress work on a just transition to a low carbon sustainable economy, including:
- ensuring that current and proposed environmentally sustainable projects in affected sectors, and the jobs they create, are allowed to continue and proceed;
 - making a plan to transition Queensland's economy to ensure workers and their families are not disadvantaged, including investigating financial and economic mechanisms to fund transition;

- seeking out, supporting and implementing new technologies, new systems and policies to ensure a substantial reduction in electricity prices during the just transition to a low carbon sustainable economy;
- ensuring public consultation with affected industries and unions for the process of transition, with a focus on communities highly reliant on the fossil fuel and resource industry;
- maintaining public ownership of the power industry as it transitions to new renewable technology, including building, owning and operating new renewable programs and assets;
- building renewable energy infrastructure, for example, renewable power generation, grid connections to renewable resource regions;
- providing financial support to business and workers to transition to sustainable industries, including consideration of requirements needed for transitioning to renewable locally sourced and produced materials;
- introducing appropriate regulation to ensure that there are enforceable training standards and appropriate qualifications for workers in new and emerging sustainable industries;
- ensuring that all measures taken by the Queensland Government are consistent with the ALP Federal Platform, especially in regard to provision regarding transition. Advocating for regionally specific offices of an overarching federal department tasked with transition, with a priority of access for affected communities, including Central and Western Queensland workers;
- encouraging Energy Queensland or relevant public sector entities to develop and operate new publicly-owned, built, and operated renewable programs and assets;
- as much as possible ensure that energy consumers, particularly low-income individuals, maintain access to affordable electricity and, limiting price rises as much as possible;
- ensuring consultation with affected industries and unions for the process of transition, including engagement of a nominated liaison advisor to ensure workers and the community are engaged in the relevant processes such as the establishment of the publicly-owned renewable energy entity.

This policy shall not preclude the development of energy cooperatives. A Labor Government should encourage Energy Qld to invest in microgrids and control systems where feasible to do so.

- 2.51 Labor acknowledges that a just transition to a low carbon sustainable economy will require investment in training for the development of appropriate skills in the renewables sector. Labor will introduce a specific training package for the renewables sector that integrates appropriate licensing for the safe manufacture, construction and maintenance of renewables (e.g. solar panels).
- 2.52 Labor will enable and encourage the continued growth of the services economy including in the areas of agriculture, resources, construction, manufacturing, health, aged care, education, tourism, financial services and professional services. Labor will support small and medium-sized businesses whose services underpin the Queensland economy, while encouraging larger organisations in the financial and professional services nominated sectors to call Queensland home. Labor will continue to grow our existing economic strengths across industries including tourism, resources, manufacturing and agriculture. Labor will implement policies that help grow jobs and investment across all sectors of our economy.
- 2.53 Labor will work with small business owners and representatives to provide ongoing support and development of meaningful incentives that strengthen business capacity and resilience.

Labor will continue to implement policies that put downward pressure on electricity prices for small business, that support secure and sustainable jobs growth and that control cost of living pressures on people and families in our community. All energy policies must support Queensland becoming carbon neutral by 2050.

- 2.54 Labor will maintain a strong public sector. Labor values and respects the Queensland public service and the vital contribution it makes to our state. Labor supports public sector staffing in line with service delivery requirements. Labor will grow public service jobs to enhance services for the people of Queensland.
- 2.55 Labor recognises that co-operatives, mutuals and member owned enterprises are an important alternative sector that allows participants to meet their common economic, social and cultural needs and aspirations. Labor believes that the benefits of co-operatives include job creation, social inclusion and achieving positive environmental outcomes.

In acknowledgement of this, Labor will:

- review existing legislation relevant to the operation of co-operatives and extensively consult with the sector in relation to the adoption of the Co-operatives National Law in Queensland;
- develop and implement a program of support to encourage the establishment of new co-operatives and mutual enterprises;
- ensure that the co-operative and mutuals sector is adequately represented in relevant government policy deliberations, and is actively promoted as a possible option for service delivery, particularly where community based initiatives are being considered or are appropriate;
- ensure that continual improvement of advice, guidance and information is provided at all stages in the establishment, governance and regulation of co-operatives; and
- ensure that the regulatory burden for small and medium sized co-operative and mutual enterprise aligns with the needs of these organisations and ensures they are not disadvantaged relative to companies of a similar size.

- 2.56 Labor will adopt a value supply chain approach to economic development, particularly in agriculture to support growth in the food industry, with a focus on identifying new and emerging opportunities and developing high-value, niche markets.
- 2.57 Labor will support employment, reduce economic disadvantage and maintain a social safety net. Labor will implement policies that are pro-jobs and reduce unemployment. Labor will prioritise skills development and assist Queenslanders who are unemployed or underemployed with proactive measures that help them to enter or re-enter the workplace.

Labor recognises the importance of government employed tradespeople in maintaining the safety of the public, particularly in relation to disaster recovery and the maintenance of safe environments including schools and hospitals. Labor believes that government employed tradespeople provide essential safety services to Queenslanders and must be recognised as front line staff.

- 2.58 Labor will reinvigorate a government apprenticeship program for the direct employment of apprentices in building trades, particularly to assist in building regional capability through more qualified tradespeople to support the industry and the community.
- 2.59 Labor will ensure that all government construction work and projects, delivered by government agencies and/or private organisations, adhere to and comply with a minimum requirement of 10% of total value of the project being used to employ apprentices and provide training in accordance with the Queensland Government building and construction training policy.

- 2.60 Labor will work with the building and construction industry to implement a 10% training policy as part of its new procurement policy on all their projects.
- 2.61 Labor recognises gender equality improves national productivity and competitiveness, and will remove disincentives and, Labor will develop strategies that will encourage the entry, re-entry or advancement of women in the workplace.
- 2.62 Labor will support regional Queensland. Labor will implement policies that encourage economic growth and employment opportunities outside South-East Queensland, including in agriculture and tourism, and will prioritise regionally based employment and delivery across the public sector and Government Owned Corporations.
- 2.63 Labor acknowledges the significant cost of insurance for regional families. Labor will work with relevant state and territory governments, the insurance industry and the community to lower the cost of insurance in the regions.
- 2.64 The Coordinator-General will be required to review existing unnecessary 100% fly-in fly-out workforce arrangements in established mining communities, and implement conditions allowing the choice of workers to live with their families in regional communities.
- 2.65 Labor, in consultation with Federal government, will review the allocation of funding for state services in communities that permanently host large scale non-resident workforces so that essential services can respond to the needs of both resident and non-resident populations.
- 2.66 Labor will ensure implementation and compliance across all Government departments and agencies with its new procurement policy which highlights the importance of local procurement and purchasing to all government departments and agencies. Labor will implement a minimum mandated local content requirement for jobs and material on all projects.
- 2.67 Labor believes that government investment in Queensland's infrastructure, including rail and rolling stock, should benefit local communities, businesses and create local jobs. Labor will use local businesses and workers to build and maintain all future infrastructure including rail and rolling stock.
- 2.68 Labor will ensure that all entities tendering for government work (including construction and/or the provision of goods and services) will need to demonstrate social obligation credentials and that such credentials will be considered and given weight when determining the successful tenderer. Such credentials will include but not be limited to past industrial, health and safety, quality standard, environmental, corporate governance and tax compliance record.
- 2.69 Queensland Labor will work with Federal Labor to support Australian and Queensland jobs in the Port of Gladstone.

The CSG/LNG industry will provide a massive economic benefit to the Queensland and the Australian economies.

Labor is committed to a minimum of 30% of CSG/LNG ships being crewed by Australians to ensure long-term employment and career opportunities for Australians.

- 2.70 Labor is committed to ensuring adequate gas is available to service demand from both domestic users and the state's developing liquefied natural gas (LNG) export industry.

Labor will re-introduce an annual gas market review that includes modelling and analysis of a range of factors including gas demand, gas pricing, gas reserves, gas supply and transmission and an assessment of current market issues.

The annual review will inform any potential implementation of Prospective Gas Production Land Reserve (PGPLR) under Part 2A of the Petroleum and Gas (Production and Safety) Act 2004 (Qld).

- 2.71 Labor’s vision is to see a successful and dynamic agriculture, fisheries, forestry sector that benefits all Queenslanders through education opportunities, jobs growth, and an economic dividend through trade, innovation and technology.

Labor acknowledges the need to have resilient, sustainable and productive agricultural businesses for the benefit of our communities in Queensland, including in regional and remote areas. Labor recognises the expanding global markets that the Queensland agricultural industry can access and in turn provide economic benefit to the state economy.

Primary Production

- 2.72 Labor will support agriculture initiatives that will secure the future of the food and fibre sector through planning and capitalising on regional opportunities.

- 2.73 Labor recognises that agriculture is a uniquely placed strength of the Queensland economy, and with the increase in food demand globally there is ongoing prospects for growth in the sector.

Labor will advocate for the Federal Government to include Queensland’s agricultural products, including sugar, in any trade negotiations.

- 2.74 Labor will support trade opportunities for Queensland’s world class food and fibre, marketed as clean, green, healthy and premium products. Labor will sponsor overseas trade missions with industry to assist producers and industry to expand into export markets, with a renewed focus on Asian markets.

- 2.75 Labor in government will work with agricultural industry associations, trade unions, research bodies, local government, education providers, and business to support a prosperous and productive agriculture sector. Labor recognises the potential for rural job opportunities and will work with industry to address labour issues in the sector.

- 2.76 Labor supports outback Queensland to diversify its economic base, particularly in tourism which can provide jobs throughout the dry season. Particular attention will be given to tourism attractions based on our unique advantages, namely indigenous culture, in conjunction with indigenous people, our bush culture and our unique flora and fauna.

- 2.77 Labor will work with the agriculture sector to develop measures to manage climate change induced risks and producer preparedness to ensure the long-term advancement of the sector. Labor will promote drought readiness and sector resilience in its drought assistance program.

- 2.78 Labor will work with the agricultural sector to reduce its carbon footprint through greater energy productivity and encourage carbon storage to support the sector’s transition to the new economy.

- 2.79 Labor will work with the agricultural sector to implement market-based mechanisms to support transitioning to more sustainable practices.

- 2.80 Labor will improve supply chains from Western Queensland by working with primary producers and industry representatives in improving conditions attached to meat production. Labor in government will focus on improving training, job opportunities and expanding the food production industry.
- 2.81 Labor will work with the Federal government to develop a national plan to transition away from live animal exports by 2030. Labor will work with and consult with primary producers, international and domestic stakeholders and meat industry experts to create capacity for frozen meat exports to be the primary export of meat industry and will work towards increasing the domestic market so that no primary producer or international trade partner is disadvantaged by transition.

Biosecurity

- 2.82 Labor recognises the unique biosecurity threats faced by Queensland and is committed to ensuring that our response capability is world's best practice.
- 2.83 Labor believes that a strong biosecurity system with appropriate capabilities is the building block for a strong and profitable agricultural sector and a healthy environment.
- 2.84 We recognise that biosecurity is a shared responsibility for governments at all levels, industry and the community and that it must also include co-ownership of biosecurity preparedness and responses.

Fisheries and Forestry

- 2.85 Labor is committed to maximising the economic and social benefits that Queenslanders receive from the sustainable management of fisheries in Queensland.
- 2.86 Labor will ensure that forestry and quarry resources are scientifically and environmentally managed to produce a long term economic gain to Queenslanders.

Drought

- 2.87 Labor will work with the agriculture sector to develop measures to manage climate change induced risks and producer preparedness to ensure the long-term advancement of the sector. Labor will promote drought readiness and sector resilience in its drought assistance program.
- 2.88 Labor will reinvigorate and augment support programs, including the DRAS program, with additional measures where required in light of ongoing drought conditions.
- 2.89 Labor will continue to support and fund additional Rural Financial Counselling Services further to the contribution of the Commonwealth.
- 2.90 Labor will develop a 10-year research and development blueprint for agriculture and food to enhance scientific collaboration within the state, ensure research is aligned with emerging opportunities and seek new and innovative ways to attract new funds.
- 2.91 Labor will maintain the Queensland Rural and Industry Development Authority, or its equivalent, as a delivery organisation for approved Queensland Government schemes of low interest loans, while also supporting schemes that provide a climate change and agricultural benefit.
- 2.92 Labor in conjunction with industry and trade unions, will consult on legislation or regulation that may adversely impact primary producers while in drought or during drought recovery.

- 2.93 Labor will develop further responses required to manage drought impacted farmers from the stresses of both drought and debt if conditions continue to worsen across the west of the state of Queensland.
- 2.94 Labor in government will seek to work with the Federal Government to make all possible responses and drought recovery programs available and easily assessable by primary producers.

Building and Construction Industry

- 2.95 Labor will continue to collaborate with other jurisdictions to ensure that a national solution is implemented to address the issue of non-conforming and non-compliant and banned building products and materials, in particular asbestos-containing materials.

Chapter 3: Learning for Life – Investing in our people

EDUCATION AND TRAINING

LABOR VALUES

- 3.1 Labor believes that all Queenslanders have the basic right to an appropriate, well resources, inclusive, secular public education system that encourages their full participation in the economic, social, political and cultural dimensions of society.
- 3.2 Therefore Labor supports strong public providers of education and training to ensure the delivery of quality education and training for all Queenslanders.
- 3.3 Labor believes that school and training environments which foster cultural awareness and acceptance and value differences among people are an investment in the lifelong growth of our people and our civil society.
- 3.4 Labor believes in implementing effective strategies to fully address systemic barriers to access and opportunity to education and training for all people in Queensland.
- 3.5 Labor acknowledges the distinctive educational disadvantage experienced by many Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and supports efforts to close the education and training gap through on-going consultation with members of their communities.
- 3.6 Labor values the link between economic policy and complementary education and training policies as a key contributor to future economic growth and secure employment.
- 3.7 Labor acknowledges the significant role of effective partnerships between students, teachers, communities, employers and unions in life-long learning.
- 3.8 Labor values the incorporation of the unique experiences, knowledge and perspectives of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait people into the quality educational opportunities for all students in Queensland.
- 3.9 Labor acknowledges the right of relevant unions to be stakeholders in education and training, facilitators of industrial negotiations for educational personnel and monitors of workplace health and safety.
- 3.10 Queensland Labor values corporation within a Federal framework in the crucial areas of education and training without limiting the capacity of state-based policies to manage Queensland's unique challenges, especially in delivering effective programs to remote, rural and regional Queensland.

LABOR BELIEFS

Life-long Learning

- 3.11 Labor believes learning is a life-long process that:
 - acknowledges the value of a knowledge-based society that provides opportunities for all Queenslanders to contribute to and share in their local, national and global economies, communities and environments and for personal growth

- provides Queenslanders with the literacy, numeracy, technological skills and general knowledge that is necessary for, and enabling of, their future engagements in paid employment or self-employment
- enables people to critically interrogate information and to participate in the social and cultural life of their communities
- enables and encourages individuals to participate as responsible local, national and global citizens.

Early and School-Based Education

- 3.12 Labor believes that early and school-based education is the foundation on which a strong society is built.
- 3.13 Labor believes that parents and carers have primary responsibility for the education and development of children in their care, and that early childhood education and care services providers and schools extend the abilities of all children.
- 3.14 Labor believes that the early years from birth to eight are critical in shaping the development and growth of an individual.
- 3.15 Labor believes in the provision of free early learning for all Queenslanders across all service types, taking into account family choice and the needs of children in rural, regional and remote areas.
- 3.16 Labor believes that parents should have a choice as to which school they send their children, including non-government schools, but government funding and policies need to ensure fairness in the opportunities available to all students.
- 3.17 Labor believes in providing a high quality early learning and care system that increases access to play-based and developmentally-appropriate learning experiences.
- 3.18 Labor believes in building an education system focused on mutual respect, individual achievement and excellence to become an international leader that:
- provides opportunities for all students regardless of income, sex, gender, gender identity, intersex status, sexual orientation, regional location and background
 - is transparent, accountable and highly valued by parents, industry and the wider community
 - provides a platform that promotes student and staff safety at school and in on-line learning environments – free from discrimination and bullying
 - encourages students to work collaboratively and independently on tasks that are challenging, authentic and multidisciplinary, suited to their individual ability, progress, passions and learning styles
 - creates learning environments that value diversity and multiple perspectives to enable critical thinking
 - allows teachers to facilitate, guide and mentor students in skills for lifelong learning
 - provides broad educational experiences with a focus on the Australian curriculum, while ensuring that students have access to specialised subjects
 - values and fosters the professional growth of teachers.
- 3.19 Labor acknowledges that many factors affect individual educational performance. These include:
- family support and early childhood experiences
 - personal challenges and disruptions experienced in the lives of children, especially those in the care of the state

- forms of disadvantage that can arise from factors including sex, gender, gender identity, intersex status, sexual orientation, health and disability status, regional location, socio-economic status, culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds and Indigeneity
- school resourcing policies, including access to ICT
- teacher professionalism and the access of teachers to ongoing professional development including mentoring
- teacher workloads.

3.20 Labor believes it is the responsibility of parents and carers to decide if they wish their children to participate in religious education in school.

3.21 Labor supports school autonomy and local decision making, but the introduction of independent Public Schools by the former Newman Government has created a two-tiered education system, which has seen public schools competing against each other.

Labor notes the deal done by the Commonwealth and the former Newman Government to fund 250 independent Public Schools (IQPS) in Queensland by 2017.

3.22 Labor believes that corporal punishment is not consistent with Australian best practice for life-long learning.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

3.23 Labor will strengthen a publicly funded secular and inclusive education system that provides equal access to and opportunity to participate in a high quality and challenging education for all, as a basic right.

3.24 Labor will build a school sector that is progressive, and values and encourages innovation in meeting the challenges of the future.

3.25 Labor will fund early childhood education and care in line with OECD best practice.

3.26 Labor commits to continuing to support the full implementation and funding of the Gonski funding model introduced by the previous Labor Federal Government to ensure that all state schools achieve 100% of the Schooling Resource Standard (SRS).

Labor will enact a needs-based model of education that ensures equity of access to educational achievement for all children in Queensland. Labor will resource this model on principles consistent with the original recommendations of the Gonski Review of Funding for Schooling (2011) and provide support loadings that target:

- students from low socio-economic backgrounds
- students with disabilities
- students from indigenous backgrounds
- students who need help with English; and
- schools disadvantaged by size and isolation.

3.27 Labor will develop funding and school management models that include appropriate monitoring that give individual schools the flexibility to access resources identified as necessary to service the educational needs of their students – in particular, the flexibility to provide safe environments for all students and the programs, facilities and staffing to assist in supporting students, depending on their needs.

- 3.28 Labor will ensure a fair and transparent state-wide staffing system and a rigorous process of principal selection that values diversity.
- 3.29 Labor will encourage parental engagement in education as fundamental to the future success of all school-age students.
- 3.30 Labor will invest in early childhood education and care research to improve outcomes.
- 3.31 Labor will provide a high quality early childhood curriculum that includes access to a play-based model of education in the early years of schooling.
- 3.32 Labor will ensure that schools are adequately resourced to support the teaching of Languages other than English, especially Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and Asian languages and ensure that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories and cultures are included as part of the Queensland education system. Resourcing should focus on the recruitment of appropriately qualified teachers, recognised Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander knowledge holders and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people who may not be qualified teachers but are deemed culturally appropriate.
- 3.33 Labor is committed to the provision of EAL/D support, including specialist teachers and specialist units, to ensure students for whom English is a second language can fully engage in the Australian Curriculum.
- 3.34 Labor commits to ensuring appropriate accountability and transparency measures for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander specific funding and initiatives.
- 3.35 Labor will promote improved transparency by monitoring and reporting on specific funding allocations for Indigenous education initiatives.
- 3.36 Labor will further develop consultative partnerships between students, teachers, parents, parent organisations and members of the wider community to support the development of young people to their highest potential.
- 3.37 Labor will ensure that civics and citizenship education occurs for all students at a secondary level.
- 3.38 Acknowledging the importance of optimum individual achievement of all students, Labor will recognise the need for specific programs and resources to support those students identified as being gifted and talented.
- 3.39 Labor will recognise the need for specific programs and resources to support those students identified as having learning needs.
- 3.40 Labor will ensure students occupying the middle ground of educational ability are supported in attaining their full potential.
- 3.41 Labor will ensure both government and non-government schools provide a curriculum and teaching programs that are consistent with federal and state educational objectives and meet the needs of the schools' students, families and broader communities.
- 3.42 Labor will ensure that programs and resources are available to cater for students whose abilities and circumstances do not fit within the mainstream or special schooling programs.
- 3.43 Labor recognises that some students are unable to maintain engagement with conventional classroom learning and will explore options to provide alternative educational programs.

- 3.44 Labor will invest in professional development, training and ongoing support for school principals, teachers and support staff so that they can support lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning students and create more inclusive and supportive school environments.

This work will seek to reduce discrimination, harassment, abuse and bullying against lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning students, ensuring that they are able to achieve the best educational outcomes and ensuring that all students are able to understand and respect diversity.

- 3.45 Labor is committed to traineeships and apprenticeships as highly valuable educational pathways for secondary school students and will continue to invest in quality vocational and educational programs and promote clearer pathways for students.
- 3.46 Labor will support a continuing strong publicly funded TAFE system that enables the government to take a leadership role in VET consistent with its obligations to local, state and national economies, with attention to providing services and access for regional, rural and remote communities to meet the needs of all Queenslanders.
- 3.47 Labor will ensure that changes and initiatives which affect students and teachers are developed and implemented under a governance model that includes representatives from the teaching profession, education sector, industry and wider school communities.
- 3.48 Labor will maintain a system of compulsory teacher registration to ensure that all Queensland students are taught by suitably qualified teachers.
- 3.49 Labor will ensure that teacher-training courses equip beginning teachers with the necessary curriculum knowledge, practical teaching skills and cultural/sociological understandings to enable them to confidently commence their professional careers.
- 3.50 Labor will ensure that beginning teachers will be provided with practical and ongoing structured support, which includes, but is not limited to mentoring access to professional development, coaching and professional support services. Labor supports clearly defined career pathways with commensurate remuneration and structural advancement that will attract and retain competent, committed and high-quality staff.
- 3.51 Labor values the critical role that teacher aides and other support staff play in the delivery and achievement of education outcomes for all Queensland schools.
- 3.52 Labor will ensure all education and support staff working in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander schools are appropriately qualified and have access to training which provides appropriate cultural understanding for the communities they work in.
- 3.53 Labor values the role of all education and support staff and recognises they all have an important place in the school community. Labor will ensure that support services are delivered in-house, rather than through outsourcing. Labor will not support individual contracts for teachers, principals and support staff and ensure they have the opportunity to gain permanent employment.
- 3.54 Labor will ensure school cleaners always operate in a safe workplace by providing appropriate occupational health and safety training through school cleaner inductions and an adequate injury management system.

- 3.55 Labor will recognise formally the skills and qualifications teacher aides bring to their profession, along with those acquired during their employment with Education Queensland. This will reflect the evolving and diverse role of teacher aides and the important part they play in improving outcomes for students.
- 3.56 Labor will staff schools with professionals who work in a collegiate framework that supports both the compatible goals of student education and continuous staff support and development.
- 3.57 Labor will build communities in which schools have opportunities to develop as broader community assets by becoming hubs that provide a range of affordable child - and education-focused community services, including public ownership and management of activities such as:
- early learning and care
 - child, maternal and community health services
 - other services that support community education
 - outside school hours care and vacation care.
- 3.58 Labor believes that children who have access to appropriate, nutritious food are more likely to achieve better educational outcomes than those who do not. A Labor Government will investigate the implementation of a breakfast and/or lunch program to be introduced into government schools, providing healthy food appropriate to their local communities.
- 3.59 Labor will improve the interface between intensive family support services and early childhood development.
- 3.60 Labor will develop a workforce action plan to enhance the qualifications, skills and capabilities of the early childhood education and care services workforce. Labor acknowledges this is a highly feminised workforce and, as a result, their pay is not reflective of the important work they do.
- Labor supports the Equal Remuneration Order (ERO) being pursued by early childhood educators. Labor will write a submission to the ERO in support of professional pay for early childhood educators.
- 3.61 Labor recommends that beyond this no further IPS be approved in Queensland. Labor also commits to a full review of the IPS program within the first 12 months of the next term of government.
- 3.62 Labor will develop an effective and efficient framework to identify high performing teachers giving excellent teachers the opportunity for promotion without leaving the classroom.
- 3.63 Labor will revitalise teacher training to make sure graduates are well equipped for the classroom.
- 3.64 Labor will identify opportunities for administration officers in state schools to be recognised for the vital role they play in education.
- 3.65 Labor will provide more jobs for guidance officers to support students at school.
- 3.66 Labor will ensure that all schools have the necessary resourcing to effectively deliver digital technology curriculum elements, such as STEM, coding and robotics, through additional IT and system supports.
- 3.67 Labor will ensure that children who do not opt in to religious instruction at school will continue with learning activities.

- 3.68 Labor will continue to support the employment of secular youth workers in schools with a view to providing quality, trained non-faith-based services to all state school students.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION AND TRAINING

LABOR BELIEFS

- 3.69 Labor believes that national productivity and individual economic success both depend upon vocational education and training (VET) systems. These systems:
- provide entry level skills to allow people to enter the workforce
 - increase workforce participation, by providing opportunities for unemployed and under-employed people, and those returning from breaks in their career, to gain or enhance their employment
 - provide leadership in provision of Occupational Workplace Health and Safety Training
 - support business and workers with retraining and up-skilling in times of change in the labour market, arising from structural changes in the economy and technological and other developments
 - recognise, where appropriate, the benefits of a market-based training system, but acknowledge the need for an associated focus by government on quality, consumer protection and areas of market failure
 - recognise the important links between the VET system and higher education through articulation, bridging programs and joint programs
 - recognise the role of the public provider of vocational education and training
 - act inclusively to ensure that marginalised groups in the community have access to VET
 - recognise the need for an equitable fee structure
 - are regulated by a public organisation to enhance quality.
- 3.70 Labor believes the quality of the VET system is dependent on having a suitably qualified and experienced teaching staff.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 3.71 A flexible and effective VET system includes institutional training, structured on-the-job training and work experience. It is therefore a partnership between government, training providers, employers, trade unions, trainees and apprentices.
- 3.72 Labor will support a continuing strong publicly funded TAFE system that enables the government to take a leadership role in VET consistent with its obligations to local, state and national economies and meeting the needs of Queenslanders.
- 3.73 Labor will provide leadership in the provision of pre-vocational experience and training to secondary school students.
- 3.74 Labor will ensure that apprentices and trainees are paid fair wages and have access to affordable training.
- 3.75 Labor will provide opportunities for Queenslanders to obtain the entry-level qualifications they need to enter the workforce.
- 3.76 Labor will ensure the highest levels of training outcomes, particularly for high risk industries (such as electrical) where community and worker safety is of paramount importance. To achieve this, Labor commits to ensuring that licencing in high risk occupational trades will be overseen, and where appropriate assessed, by institutions such as industry regulators that are independent of training providers and who are responsible for industry standards and safety.

- 3.77 Labor will reinstate Skilling Queenslanders for Work to support Queenslanders entry into the workforce.
- 3.78 Labor recognises the high quality of training provided by TAFE Queensland across the state. Labor remains committed to ensuring that the difficulties experienced by the public providers of vocational education and training will not have an impact on meeting the skills needs of the future.
- 3.79 Labor will restore TAFE as Queensland’s premier public provider of VET and work towards a minimum of two thirds of all state government investment in VET being delivered via the TAFE system.
- 3.80 Labor commits to restoring basic literacy, numeracy and technology classes as an integral part of the TAFE system (free of charge or at minimal cost). These classes have enabled educationally disadvantaged adults to fully participate in our society and to have access to vocational pathways.
- 3.81 Labor will establish an independent statutory body to provide advice to government on skills demand and long-term workforce planning.
- 3.82 Labor will return control of the state’s training assets to the Department of Education and Training.
- 3.83 Labor will create an independent Training Ombudsman with the power to investigate complaints about the quality of training.
- 3.84 Labor will provide skilling opportunities to underpin jobs in new, emerging or changed economic and social circumstances.
- 3.85 Consistent with its community service obligations, Labor will provide a second chance at education and training for people who have been out of the workforce, for example, people returning to the workforce after time out for family responsibilities, workers made redundant through structural and technological changes in the workforce, and people whose personal circumstances meant they require access to training to obtain employment.
- 3.86 Labor will work with disadvantaged and marginalised groups across the state to ensure they can access training opportunities, course structures and content appropriate to their needs.
- 3.87 Labor recognises the distinctive circumstances of regional Queenslanders and will ensure that access to training, including on-line learning, is not limited unnecessarily by location. Labor believes that training provision should take into account the economic, commercial, industrial and socio-cultural needs of each region.
- 3.88 Labor recognises the need for an equitable fee structure within the VET system to ensure that all Queenslanders have access to high quality training which meets personal needs and provides opportunities to secure meaningful employment.

HIGHER EDUCATION

LABOR BELIEFS

- 3.89 Labor supports a higher education sector that:
 - provides internationally acknowledged programs of excellence for undergraduate and postgraduate students, including research centres

- attracts students and professional staff who want to engage in world's best courses and research
- contains centres of research excellence that are capable of developing knowledge, products and processes of global significance
- provides access, and eliminates systemic blockages, to the participation of disadvantaged groups in the community, especially those whose participation may be limited because they have inadequate financial support, or are from rural, regional or remote areas
- is regulated by a publicly funded organisation, currently the Tertiary Education Quality and Standards Agency.

3.90 Labor believes that student representative organisations (unions, guilds and SRCs) are an important component in both higher education institutions and in civil society more broadly.

3.91 Labor strongly supports undergraduate student, postgraduate student and staff involvement in the management of their university communities and in university decision making processes. As such Labor supports elected undergraduate student, postgraduate students and staff representation at all levels of university decision making.

3.92 Labor commits to re-establishing the importance of a training contract and will ensure the parties to the contract continue to meet their employment and training commitments until the contract is cancelled by the relevant state authority, following fair procedures.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

3.93 Labor will develop partnerships with the sector that provide access to the human, financial, natural and infrastructural resources of government to enhance the capacity of those institutions to develop courses, undertake research and promote the work of those institutions.

3.94 Labor will engage with the higher education sector to develop partnerships and enable participation of marginalised groups in Queensland, for example, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, rural and remote communities and culturally and linguistically diverse groups.

3.95 Labor will work with the higher education sector to boost online-learning opportunities for Queenslanders to undertake further education and lifelong learning.

3.96 Labor will support the development of partnerships between higher education and employer groups.

3.97 Labor will support Queensland secondary schools in building partnerships with higher education institutions.

Chapter 4: Industrial Relations – Making our workplaces safe, productive and fair

LABOR VALUES

- 4.1 Labor’s industrial relations policy is built on the values of a fair go for all working Queenslanders and for employers. Labor believes in an industrial relations environment that relies on genuine consultation, cooperation and mutual respect between all parties.
- 4.2 Labor believes in collective participation. The best way to ensure collective participation is to recognise, support and encourage the right of workers to organise through unions. Through unions working Queenslanders have achieved fair standards in health and safety, in remuneration, and in conditions of employment. Unions are the best way to maintain and advance those standards.
- 4.3 Labor believes that a fair industrial relations system relies on independent tribunals and on an independent judicial system.
- 4.4 Labor believes in workplaces free from discrimination, bullying and harassment.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 4.5 Queensland Labor’s policy on industrial relations is founded on the following beliefs.
- 4.6 In 2015, Labor passed the Industrial Relations (Restoring Fairness) and Other Legislation Amendment Act 2015 (Qld) through the Queensland Parliament, has issued a formal commitment to union encouragement for public sector employees and has moved to secure funding for TAFE; with legislation also soon to be enacted in support of enhanced workplace health and safety and workers compensation rights, FIFO and other long distance community work practices and restoring the Labour Day public holiday to May from 2016. A collaborative process facilitates review of the state Industrial Relations Act 2016 (Qld) and Industrial Tribunals to restore workers’ rights. Labor has also spoken out in support of the retention of workers’ penalty rates. These actions deliver on key election promises.
- 4.7 The existence of a strong, representative and responsible union movement is essential to the achievement of an efficient, just and equitable industrial relations system and a fairer society.
- 4.8 ILO standards, such as are reflected in the International Labour Organisation conventions, provide rights and responsibilities for registered unions.

Labor will ensure that primacy is given the conventional system of registered unions and as such, unregistered industrial associations which evade regulation and compete with legally registered unions will not be supported.

Labor notes that legislative provisions regarding industrial associations exist solely to allow time for unregistered associations to develop into registered unions in employment areas where no other union coverage exists.

Labor will ensure that these legislative provisions are not misused to promote the evasion of regulation or competition between unregistered associations and registered trade unions.

- 4.9 Every employee has a right to a “fair go” at work and to be informed of the right to access Union representation.
- 4.10 Workers who dutifully provide their mental and physical labour to their employer should be able to expect job security from their employer.
- 4.11 Every worker is entitled to a fair day’s pay for a fair day’s work. Further, wages and employment conditions need to be underpinned by relevant and enforceable industrial instruments and legislation.
- 4.12 All industrial parties involved in the employment relationship should be able to resolve disputes before an impartial tribunal.
- 4.13 All workers have the right to be paid the same transparent remuneration for undertaking the same work.
- 4.14 All workers have the right to bargain collectively, to be represented by their union, and to have access to union support at their workplace, and workers and employers have the right to negotiate any matter as part of enterprise bargaining.
- 4.15 Workers and employers have a mutual interest in working collaboratively to ensure the delivery of high-quality services and products in an efficient and effective manner.
- 4.16 Workers and employers will enhance productivity in the state by enhancing the skills and capabilities of workers, developing the leadership and management skills of employers, and adopting innovative work practices.
- 4.17 Workers and employers will benefit by adopting for workplaces a high-level skills agenda that increases the capability and competitive advantage of Queensland industries and services. Further, workers and employers should contribute to developing this agenda, as it will directly benefit industry.
- 4.18 Workers and employers will benefit by the provision of relevant re-training and industry support to those employees and businesses negatively impacted by economic and industrial adjustment.
- 4.19 Workers and employers benefit by having safe and healthy workplaces where parties involved share responsibilities for preventing accidents and injuries.
- 4.20 All employees have a right to access a no-fault, universal workers’ compensation and rehabilitation system that supports injured workers and their families and allows for common-law damages against negligent employers.
- 4.21 Labor believes it is vital to educate young people about their rights at work. Labor supports youth-led initiatives, and the opportunity for senior secondary schools and TAFEs to opt in to education programs.
- 4.22 Queensland Labor’s policy on industrial relations has repeatedly faced the challenge of attacks on workers’ rights and conditions by conservative governments that continually amend legislation and policies to reduce the ability of union members to organise and protect workers’ employment conditions.

The Queensland Labor Government will support Federal Labor in repealing unjust laws and institutions (such as the ABCC) which have a detrimental effect on workers and their families.

- 4.23 Labor will proudly defend workers and their families against these attacks, restoring workers' rights and conditions by conservative governments that continually amend legislation and policies to reduce the ability of union members to organise and protect workers' employment conditions.
- 4.24 Labor will proudly defend workers and their families against these attacks, restoring workers' rights and employment conditions and ensuring fairness, equality and access to opportunity. We will fight to ensure legislative and policy changes do not disadvantage workers, whether they are in the public or private sectors.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 4.25 Labor will implement industrial relations policies within the framework of the following measures.
- 4.26 Labor will amend the Work Health and Safety Act 2011 (Qld) to include specific provisions relating to negligence causing death (Industrial Manslaughter) to ensure that an unscrupulous employer or entity found to have been negligent or otherwise culpable for causing serious injury or death are prosecuted to the full extent of the law. This amendment is the criminal deterrent needed to save more workers lives and protect the public.
- 4.27 Labor will protect the safety of construction workers by working with stakeholders to immediately implement a strict accreditation process for Registered Training Organisations who deliver white card and Asbestos A & B Training.

Labor will stop the fraudulent use of online training by immediately amending the Regulators' existing agreements with RTOs (under section 325) and the current terms and conditions of agreements for registered training organisations to issue general construction induction training cards, to include new requirements for RTOs that require practical components of the training to be delivered face to face.

- 4.28 Labor will ensure that labour standards keep pace with the emerging renewables sector and are protected by legislation and enforcement through
- licencing all electrical work undertaken on renewables projects, including but not limited to mandatory licensed electrical work requirements
 - updating and enforcing workplace health and safety standards on renewables projects and operations
 - where the State Government is a funder of renewable projects, requiring compliance with State legislation and policies, including the Queensland Procurement Policy, on all projects of the proponent; and
 - legislation providing sanctions and penalties to organisations and companies that do not adhere to the requirements of the new laws
- 4.29 Queensland Labor commits to reviewing the applied rulings for declared public service offices to ensure consistency and fairness in the application of public service directives.
- 4.30 Labor will implement reforms to introduce state-based safe rates in the transport industry in Queensland similar to the previously instituted Road Safety Remuneration Tribunal legislated at a Commonwealth level. This organisation will take responsibility for promoting safety and fairness in the road transport industry by doing the following:

- ensuring that road transport drivers do not have remuneration-related incentives to work in an unsafe manner;
- removing remuneration-related incentives, pressures and practices that contribute to unsafe work practices;
- ensuring that road transport drivers are paid for their work, including loading or unloading their vehicles or waiting for someone else to load or unload their vehicles;
- developing and applying reasonable and enforceable standards throughout the road transport industry supply chain to ensure the safety of road transport drivers;
- ensuring that hirers of road transport drivers and participants in the supply chain take responsibility for implementing and maintaining those standards;
- facilitating access to dispute resolution procedures relating to remuneration and related conditions for road transport drivers.

Industrial Relations

- 4.31 Labor commits to completing fair reparations to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, who up to the 1970s had their wages stolen under the auspices of previous State Governments, removing an injustice that has stained Queensland's history.
- 4.32 Labor acknowledges that not only do barriers exist to Indigenous workforce participation but that, once in the workforce, there is significant inequity that exists with regards to Indigenous employment continuity, wages and superannuation. Labor will seek to redress these inequities in government and 'close the career gaps' that exist for Indigenous workers.
- 4.33 Labor will encourage a workplace environment of collaboration and mutual respect between employees and employers.
- 4.34 Labor will protect job security for workers in the public sector, providing confidence for those workers and their families and restoring the proper independence of the public service.
- 4.35 Labor commits to implement labour market testing arrangements in its new procurement policy to ensure full potential of local employment opportunity and the clear preference for all workers on projects to have access to the benefits of collective bargaining industrial agreements, underpinned by awards and compliance with minimum employment standards.
- 4.36 Labor will support employers, including Government agencies, and unions to develop working time arrangements that are consistent with employees' preferences and needs and that will reduce excessive working hours and maximise employment creation. Labor will also use any means available to it to ensure no reduction of pre-1 July 2017 penalty rates for excessive or unsociable hours, weekends and public holidays for all employees.
- 4.37 Labor will ensure the protection of employment conditions through a comprehensive award framework that will provide for the well-being of working families in our state (including, but not limited to, employment conditions such as reasonable hours of work, consultation, leave, public holidays, penalty rates, overtime and allowances for disabilities or additional responsibilities).
- 4.38 Labor will introduce into the Queensland Employment Standards within the Industrial Relations Act 2016 up to 2-hours paid leave for workers to donate blood, platelets or plasma every 3 months.
- 4.39 Labor will legislate harsher penalties for those who assault the public transport workers providing this vital public service as a priority in Government.

- 4.40 That Labor explore options and incentives to encourage employers to employ persons with a disability with a view towards removing limitations and creating opportunities for people with a disability.
- 4.41 Labor commits to protecting workers' take-home pay and will not allow a reduction of State Award penalty rates for weekends and public holidays from their current level (as at 28 July 2017).
- 4.42 Labor will ensure consistent treatment of public holidays, including the issue of Easter Sunday and the treatment of Christmas Day, Boxing Day and New Year's Day where they fall on weekends. Further, Labor will work to provide for appropriate penalty rates and leave arrangements, where any new public holiday is gazetted.
- 4.43 Labor will re-establish collective bargaining and enterprise agreements as the core mechanism for securing wages and conditions, with no disadvantage to workers, against a comprehensive award safety net. Labor's legislation will enable unions and their members to take industrial action in support of their claims and allow agreements to be made in relation to any matters (including, but not limited to rostering, workloads, job security and right-of-entry provisions).
- 4.44 Labor is committed to working closely with Federal Labor and federal industrial relations forums to introduce a guillotine mechanism in legislation to terminate long expired collective agreements which apply to workers made under the 'WorkChoices' legislation.
- Labor's legislation will enable these 'zombie' agreements, which often have very few substantive provisions in the agreement which have any practical effect other than to lock out award entitlements, to be terminated with precision.
- 4.45 Labor will ensure there are no statutory individual contracts for workers covered by industrial instruments. Labor will ensure that the state's industrial relations tribunals are given primacy in determining industrial matters affecting all workers in the state's industrial relations system, including trading hours and permanency of employment.
- 4.46 Labor will ensure workers are fairly remunerated by employers for the work that they perform.
- 4.47 Labor is committed to a minimum wage that will improve the relative living standards of low paid workers.
- 4.48 Labor will regulate the labour hire industry, through the provision of a licencing scheme, to eliminate labour hire practices that undermine existing employment rights, conditions and job security, exploit workers, breach federal or state laws, and result in the avoidance of payroll tax and WorkCover premiums.
- Once the new labour hire laws have passed Parliament, Labor will establish shortly thereafter, in consultation with unions, a new compliance unit to ensure and oversee that the new laws are complied with.
- 4.49 Labor will prevent transfer of business, corporate restructuring, phoenixing, labour hire, insourcing or outsourcing arrangements to be used to avoid obligations to employees under relevant legislation, an award or a collective agreement.
- 4.50 Labor will ensure that legislation protection exists so that subcontractors, contractors and suppliers have security of payment and agreed terms of payment.

- 4.51 Labor will ensure the industrial relations system operates to reduce the incidence of underemployment and insecure work and will also set an objective test for determining when a worker is casual.
- 4.52 Labor will ensure that employers give priority to permanent employment over other types of employment.
- 4.53 Labor understands the importance of state funded projects for local employment and will give priority to secure and direct employment arrangements when determining how best to manage projects and deliver services.
- 4.54 In circumstances where contingent workers are engaged by State Government, or state-owned entities or on state funded projects, Labor will ensure the rights of the workforce are protected by:
- implementing standards which prohibit pyramid sub-contracting, sham contracting arrangements, phoenixing, union obstruction activity, and sub-standard or out-dated employment arrangements
 - implementing procurement standards that will include criteria requiring a demonstration of a proven record of, and commitment to, continued positive industrial relations practices including:
 - collective bargaining arrangements
 - workers' compensation
 - Workplace Health and Safety
 - payroll tax
 - training obligations
 - meeting trade licensing and professional registration requirements
 - fair employment standards
 - establishing and funding a compliance group with the appointment of a chief registrar who has the capacity to enforce sanctions, fines and/or removal of further tendering to ensure that any tenderer complies with their contract and procurement standards during the life of any contract.
- 4.55 Employers of the contingent workforce of the government include labour hire companies providing temporary role replacement, other labour hire firms engaged by government, professional services and their subsidiary contractors. This does not include the normal purchase of inputs to government agencies such as office supplies.
- 4.56 Labor will actively preference direct employment by the Government rather than labour hire and does not support the use of labour hire arrangements to reduce the wages and conditions of public sector workers. The State Government and related entities will pay labour hire employees no lesser rates of pay and, where possible, provide the same or greater conditions of employment as those employees directly engaged. Where it is determined that roles currently undertaken by labour hire workers can be filled by direct employees, they will be filled by means of direct employment. The State Government will ensure State Government funded projects delivered by Local Government are also required to adhere to these conditions.
- 4.57 Labor will limit the use of external contractor agencies in the management of recruitment and selection activities associated with the appointment of staff within the Qld Public Service. Where possible, these activities will be performed by Department or Agency staff.
- 4.58 Labor believes in a fair, safe, efficient and sustainable shipping industry for a strong Queensland economy and regions and to protect the Great Barrier Reef.

- 4.59 Labor does not support the use of partnership agreements and other sham contract arrangements by employers in the maritime industry. Labor will explore options to amend the Partnership Act 1891 (Qld) or other relevant legislation to ensure that partnership agreements are not used to de-unionise the workforce and avoid entitlements and legislative protections that currently accrue to employees in this industry. Labor will, therefore, urgently review the process and act to prevent it.
- 4.60 Labor is committed to working closely with industry, unions and Queensland communities to enhance the role of intrastate shipping to grow regional economic development and jobs for Queenslanders.
- 4.61 Labor will pursue a parliamentary enquiry into intrastate shipping involving all relevant stakeholders to identify barriers and assess options for policy reform to strengthen Queensland's intrastate shipping industry and the regional economic growth it supports, and to maximise Queensland seafaring labour.
- 4.62 Labor recognises the importance of mutually beneficial economic relationships with trading partners as crucial to our nation's future prosperity.

However, Labor stands with unions and communities in opposing Free Trade Agreements that would undermine job security and employment opportunities for local workers, compromise training and apprenticeships for young people, erode safety standards, expose government to costly litigation, place unprecedented power in the hands of corporations at the expense of Australian national sovereignty and impede the ability of current and future federal, state and local governments to legislate in Australia's national interest.

- 4.63 Labor will ensure that workers have the security of knowing that the terms and conditions of employment mutually agreed to by themselves and their employers will not be unilaterally extinguished or modified while in force.
- 4.64 Labor recognises and encourages the important role of unions and union delegates in enhancing and maintaining the well-being of working people and their families in Queensland.
- 4.65 Labor will ensure that consultation in relation to industrial matters is undertaken regularly through the Queensland Labour Advisory Council, which will be made up of affiliated unions, the Parliamentary Labor Party, the ALP Queensland branch and non-affiliated peak bodies by invitation.
- 4.66 Labor will ensure the freedom of unions to participate fully in matters of public debate and public policy.
- 4.67 Labor will maintain the ability of unions and their representatives to freely organise and access members so as to enhance and protect their industrial interests, including restoring right-of-entry provisions.
- 4.68 Labor commits its support to fair and equitable recruitment and selection processes across the Queensland Public Service based upon the principle of merit.

Labor will develop the capabilities and leadership of the public sector to deliver high-quality services to the Queensland community. Further, it will ensure that there is accountability for the delivery of such services and that such accountability and quality will not be outsourced or privatised.

- 4.69 Labor will ensure that workers have appropriate remedies available to them if they suffer discrimination in their workplaces.

- 4.70 Labor supports the right of every worker to a safe home, community and workplace. Labor stands against domestic and family violence. Labor commends the State Government's response to the Not Now, Not Ever report on Domestic and Family Violence, including the introduction of domestic and family violence leave of 10 days paid leave per year and employee support measures as a minimum standard and will work with stakeholders in the Industrial Relations Act 2016 (Qld) Review to implement this reform.
- 4.71 Labor will amend Queensland's anti-discrimination laws to include domestic and family violence victim status as a protected attribute.
- 4.72 Labor will ensure that workers have appropriate remedies available to them if they are subject to workplace bullying and that any matters of workplace bullying can be dealt with by the state's industrial relations tribunals.
- 4.73 Labor will ensure that workers have mechanisms to ensure remuneration equity for work of equal or comparable value.
- 4.74 Labor will help people manage their work and caring responsibilities through paid parental leave, rights to unpaid parental leave of up to two years, the right to request part time work or other flexible work arrangements (including an effective right of review for unreasonable refusals of their requests) and the right to work reasonable but not excessive hours.
- 4.75 Labor rejects any corruption of the national paid parental leave scheme to no longer enable working parents to access the national scheme in addition to any paid parental leave benefit negotiated at workplace level.
- 4.76 Labor is committed to the goal of minimum 26 weeks at full pay plus superannuation through a combination of government and employer contributions.
- 4.77 Labor will ensure that workers have safe workplaces and full access to support and legal rights if injured in the conduct of their employment.
- 4.78 Labor will ensure government funding is dependent on the maintenance of safe work practices, award and industrial instrument conditions on the project for which the financial assistance or investment is given.
- 4.79 Labor will recognise the important role played by workplace health and safety representatives within workplaces.
- 4.80 Labor will ensure the rights of accredited Union Officials to gain meaningful access to workplaces, particularly when responding to emergent safety issues and allowing workplace health and safety representatives the capacity to direct workers to cease work when the representative identifies imminent safety risks to workers. The government commits to urgently make the legislative changes to ensure those rights are protected, and not obstructed by employers, with automatic penalties for obstructing rights of entry.
- 4.81 Labor will restore the original elements of the harmonised Work Health and Safety Act 2011 (Qld) that was brought into full effect in 2012 and will restore the Coal Mining Safety and Health Act 1999 (Qld) to its pre-April 2012 status.
- 4.82 Labor will investigate opportunities for expanding the application of portable employment entitlements (long-service leave, superannuation) to other industry sectors.

- 4.83 Labor will abolish the Public Health Regulation 2005 – Division 1 Asbestos Regulation 2E and Work Health and Safety Regulation 2011 (2)(a) and all related provisions and regulations. This is to stop anyone from removing up to 10,m2 of bonded asbestos removal. There is no safe level of asbestos exposure and only licensed and accredited removalists should be authorised to undertake any removal of asbestos.
- 4.84 Labor will ensure the industrial framework in Queensland is inclusive and incorporates an obligation on all parties to consult so that there is consistency and stability with regard to industrial matters.
- 4.85 Labor will develop legislation to provide reasonable protections for workers in relation to obtrusive surveillance in the workplace including camera, audio, email and internet monitoring, unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAV/Drones) and the use of tracking devices or tracking by any means. Labor will also legislate to regulate the use of work related Drug and Alcohol testing.
- 4.86 Labor will regulate and educate employers to promote equal opportunity, gender pay equity and work and family balance. Labor will enact an equal pay for equal or comparable work strategy underpinned by legal obligations.
- 4.87 Labor will work in partnership with the business sector to bridge the gap in women’s retirement incomes, through superannuation education programs and financial counselling for women.
- 4.88 Labor will work in partnership with the business and community sector to remove barriers that allow the gender pay gap to persist, including pay secrecy clauses and unequal paid parental leave.
- 4.89 Labor will reintroduce legislation similar to the Equal Opportunity in Public Employment Act 1992 (Qld) with the aim of eliminating discrimination and promoting equality in public sector employment.
- 4.90 Labor will reduce the gender pay gap in the public sector by having a target of women as a percentage of senior management in each public sector agency consistent with the total workforce.
- 4.91 Labor will examine the re-introduction of an advisory service for young workers in consultation with unions.
- 4.92 Labor will introduce legislation to prohibit 100% fly in fly out (FIFO) arrangements for major projects in regional Queensland.
- 4.93 Labor will ensure workers are free to choose where they live with their families and will not be discriminated against based on their geographic location. Labor will ensure that major projects make every effort to source labour locally before resorting to fly in fly out (FIFO) or drive in drive out (DIDO) arrangements.
- 4.94 Subject to the above, before State Government approvals are given for new projects that will utilise fly in fly (FIFO) out arrangements, Labor will establish a Code of Conduct which will require companies to provide high quality accommodation; demonstrate a record of responsible industrial relations and commit to comply with all legislative requirements including collective bargaining arrangements; design rosters that meet high health and safety standards, particularly in relation to fatigue; and provide for an employee’s physical, social and psychological welfare.

Labor will establish a Workplace Health and Safety Code of Practice on remote work that specifically prohibits roster arrangements such as the "3-on, 1-off" type of roster.

4.95 Labor will review operation of the (FIFO) legislation 12 months after its enactment, paying particular attention to whether the construction and decommissioning phase of major projects should be incorporated.

Workers' Compensation and Rehabilitation

4.96 Labor will remove the retrograde denial of access to legal rights for workers injured at work, through the imposition of a threshold on whole-of-person impairment. Labor will remove this unwarranted and discriminatory threshold.

4.97 Labor supports the introduction of a truly independent Mine Safety and Health Authority with responsibility for ensuring the safety and health of mining resource industry workers in Queensland.

4.98 Labor will reverse amendments to the legislation that allow a worker's compensation history to be used against them regarding future career prospects.

4.99 Labor will restore the ability of people who have contracted a dust disease, such as asbestos-related disease or black lung to progress their case in an unrestricted manner rather than be required to obtain a terminal diagnosis.

4.100 Labor will ensure health and financial support for victims of Black Lung and other dust related diseases is of paramount importance by doing whatever is necessary to fund this support.

Measures to be considered may include, but not be limited to:

- streamlining Workers' Compensation processes to ensure those diagnosed with Black Lung are treated in a similar manner as those diagnosed with mesothelioma
- reviewing WorkCover premiums of mining companies
- a special levy on mining companies
- direct funding of appropriate support group
- advocating the Federal Government to ensure Medicare covers medical costs related to diagnosis and ongoing care.

4.101 Labor will ensure that employers do not terminate the employment of injured workers and that their rehabilitation and return to work are a priority.

4.102 Labor will pursue options to ensure that employers comply with their return to work/rehabilitation obligations, including enforcing compliance and providing rights of appeal.

4.103 Labor will work with all unions and the legal community to implement an orderly transfer to a new workers' compensation system, with due consideration of the rights of injured workers and the timing of workers' compensation payments.

Chapter 5: Our Environment Our Future

LABOR VALUES

- 5.1 Queensland's unique and ecologically diverse environment must be protected, preserved and managed for the public good and in perpetuity for future generations.
- 5.2 Labor believes in a just transition to a low carbon economic growth using the principle of ecologically sustainable development (ESD). Labor will ensure that the principles and purpose of ESD and the framework of environmental economics are reflected, where required to develop a sustainable low carbon economy, in all statutory legislation.
- 5.3 Labor believes in strong action on climate change through decarbonising the energy sector through increased deployment of renewable generation and commits to ensuring essential services, such as new renewable energy assets, are publicly built, owned and maintained.
- 5.4 The rights of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people should be central to conservation and cultural heritage management, and the value of their traditional knowledge of land and sea country management respected and acknowledged in the development of conservation policies and joint management arrangements.
- 5.5 Declining habitat and the impact of climate change requires Government to acquire and manage an increased amount of terrestrial and marine habitats to ensure the preservation of biodiversity and ecological systems.
- 5.6 Confronting the issue of climate change is an important priority for all governments. Labor recognises that Queensland is in a unique position to embrace a low-carbon future.
- 5.7 In an integrated, scientifically robust approach to the management of Queensland's natural resources, a Labor Government will focus on the connections between water, land and vegetation to underpin a coordinated policy for the management of sustainable production in agriculture, forestry, fisheries and mining.
- 5.8 Labor will investigate transitioning remote communities from diesel generated power to sustainable renewable energy.
- 5.9 Labor is committed to the 'polluter-pays' principle and this will inform and underpin policy and program design to ensure a clean Queensland environment, on which our community health and economic strength relies.
- 5.10 Labor continues to support national leadership of environmental laws to protect our environment and safeguard our unique natural heritage and environment on behalf of future Australians. Queensland Labor will develop science based laws and strategies and support effective national environmental laws.
- 5.11 The Commonwealth should retain responsibility for the approval of actions that may have a significant impact on Matters of National Environmental Significance (MNES), including:
 - matters of World Heritage
 - National Heritage
 - wetlands of international importance (i.e., RAMSAR wetlands)

- listed threatened species and communities
- listed migratory species
- protection of the environment from nuclear actions
- the marine environment
- the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park
- the protection of water resources from unconventional gas and mining.

5.12 Labor supports the World Heritage List coordinated by UNESCO and will work with the Australian Government to manage listed properties in accordance with best practice and UNESCO recommendations and support new listings.

NATURE CONSERVATION AND HERITAGE PROTECTION

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 5.13 Labor is committed to preserving Queensland’s rich environmental, cultural and built heritage for the enjoyment and betterment of current and future generations.
- 5.14 Labor is committed to conserving Queensland’s fauna, flora, ecosystems and genetic diversity by expanding the protected area estate, supporting the nomination of new world heritage areas and establishing conservation agreements with property owners. Labor is committed to managing the protected area estate and other ecological important areas in partnership with Traditional Owners.
- 5.15 Labor will continue the “State of Environment” environmental report regime as required under the Environmental Protection Act 1994 (Qld), and will promote the State of Environment report to the community.
- 5.16 In recognition of their valuable contribution, Labor will continue to provide financial and other support to property owners and volunteers that conserve, manage and restore essential habitat, threatened ecosystems and biodiversity corridors on their properties.
- 5.17 Labor will commit to developing a mechanism for reviewing terms of mining leases in Queensland, including mining approvals, conditions and impacts on communities where necessary.

National Parks and Protected Areas

- 5.18 Labor endorse the Convention on Biological Diversity target to preserve 17% of the Australian landmass. To meet this target, Labor will expand Queensland’s protected area estate to include representative and viable samples of the state’s ecological communities and bio-geographical regions.
- 5.19 Labor acknowledges the need for a comprehensive protected area estate and will restore the categories of parks to reflect the purpose and level of protection needed.
- 5.20 Labor acknowledges the high value of traditional Indigenous knowledge in natural resource and protected area management. It will establish strong relationships with the Traditional Custodians of protected areas, and ensure appropriate involvement in matters relating to the management and protection of country and biocultural values, including through joint management.
- 5.21 Labor will ensure that National Parks and the protected area estate is managed in accordance with the Cardinal Principle.

- 5.22 Labor supports the use of National Parks for appropriate and ecologically sensitive activities. To avoid adverse impacts, Labor will ensure that intensive development required to support the appropriate and ecologically sensitive use of National Parks is located outside of the boundary of protected areas.
- 5.23 Labor will ensure that development and other types of activities within National Parks and the protected area estate are managed in accordance with the Cardinal Principle.
- 5.24 Labor will continue to ensure the Queensland Parks and Wildlife Service is adequately resourced to enable National Parks and the protected area estate to be properly managed.
- 5.25 Labor will ensure that comprehensive scientific management plans are established for all National Parks and the protected area estate (including Marine Parks).
- 5.26 Labor will protect and conserve ecologically important marine areas through a network of marine parks and supporting World Heritage listing for internationally important areas.

World Heritage Listing and International Environmental Treaties

- 5.27 Labor supports the world heritage list coordinated by UNESCO. Labor in government will work with the Australian Government to manage listed properties in accordance with best practice and UNESCO recommendations and support new listings.
- 5.28 In recognition of their universal environmental and cultural values, Labor will progress nominating areas of Cape York and the Great Sandy Straits as new World Heritage Areas subject to the support of Traditional Owners, property owners and stakeholders.
- 5.29 Labor will protect Ramsar-listed and other wetlands across Queensland by ensuring that nearby development does not cause adverse impacts to wetlands ecological and hydrological values.
- 5.30 Labor will collaborate with the Australian Government to identify and nominate internationally significant wetlands in Queensland for listing under the Ramsar Convention.
- 5.31 Labor in government will respond to recommendations for protecting the marine environment arising from consultation with stakeholders and scientific investigations informing decision making on the proposed Great Sandy Strait.

Off-Park Conservation

- 5.32 To increase the area of land where nature is protected, Labor will provide incentives to freehold property owners and rural leaseholders to establish Nature Refuges on their properties. Labor will introduce regulatory mechanisms to protect Nature Refuges and other protected areas located outside of National Parks from mining and other types of incompatible land uses.
- 5.33 Labor will provide incentives and develop market based mechanisms to encourage leaseholders and freehold land owners to protect essential habitat, threatened ecosystems and biodiversity corridors located on their property. Labor will investigate carbon farming and other market-based mechanisms to protect ecosystem services on land excluded from the Australian Government's carbon farming framework.
- 5.34 Labor will use the regional planning system and legislative instruments to protect and restore the natural environment.

Biodiversity Conservation

- 5.35 Labor will include in regional plans, action plans to prevent further loss of habitat for threatened species. As a priority, Labor will ensure that the revised South-East Queensland Regional Plan includes an action plan to protect koala habitat.
- 5.36 Queensland is home to a large array of flora and fauna, many of which are not found anywhere else in the world. Many of these species are threatened by habitat loss, introduced species and impacts of climate change. Labor believes that native species deserve legislative and regulatory protection under both the state Nature Conservation Act 1992 (Qld) and the federal Environmental Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999 (Cth).
- 5.37 Labor will establish a Wildlife Commissioner to lead threatened species recovery and manage human and wildlife interactions.
- 5.38 Labor will develop and implement threatened species recovery plans, which include recovery targets.
- 5.39 Labor commits to developing and delivering a new biodiversity strategy including prioritising corridors for climate adaption and climate refugia.
- 5.40 Labor will investigate the feasibility of constructing crossings and/or engaging other mitigation solutions in all new road, rail and water infrastructure and new urban developments to connect wildlife corridors at identified intervals necessary to ensure the safe movement of our fauna.
- 5.41 Labor will identify, protect and strengthen significant nature conservation corridors in urban areas to ensure secure, connected habitat for all native species, especially endangered and threatened species, and to provide nature based recreation education and cultural experiences for residents and visitors.
- 5.42 Labor supports:
- the maintenance of rigorous and scientifically based classification of threatened native species
 - government-funded programs to rehabilitate populations of threatened species in the protected area estate and private land
 - the protection of people from potentially dangerous native animals according to independent scientific research
 - the humane culling of non-threatened native species according to independent scientific monitoring of numbers in the wild.

Social, Cultural and Built Heritage Protection

- 5.43 Labor recognises the bio-cultural values and traditional knowledge of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples that exist on land, and in water courses and over sea country and will ensure their protection through a statutory cultural register, the maintenance of native title rights, the planning framework, the education system and appropriate presentation and interpretation. Legislation and policy to support protection will be developed in collaboration with traditional owners using consultation processes that ensure that those authorised to speak for country are properly consulted.
- 5.44 Labor also values more recent history since the first European contact and will work to protect significant places and artefacts through both local and state-wide heritage lists. We recognise the obligation of property owners to adequately maintain heritage-listed sites and will examine methods to reward owners who meet their responsibilities. We will preserve Queensland's social, cultural and built heritage through state and regional planning schemes and through a well-resourced heritage sector including museum networks.

- 5.45 Labor will introduce new protections to prevent encroachment on heritage areas and areas of local heritage significance. This is to protect the heritage value of local areas.
- 5.46 Labor will investigate and introduce new forms of protection for heritage precincts and local streetscapes.
- 5.47 Labor will investigate new ways to fund and use heritage places that are not currently protected for cultural tourism and other purposes.

Climate Change and Renewable Energy

- 5.48 Labor accepts that human-induced greenhouse gas emissions are the major cause of accelerated global climate change. Labor endorses commitments and ambition of the 2015 Paris Agreement to limit and keep global warming to well below 2 degrees Celsius.
- 5.49 Labor accepts the 2015 advice of the Australian Climate Change Authority on Australia's emissions reduction targets as part of the global effort to mitigate the effects of climate change. Labor believes that the best way to contribute to global action is to establish a national emissions trading scheme.
- 5.50 In the absence of an effective national climate change framework, Labor will develop and implement policies to reduce state-wide Greenhouse gas emissions and to enable Queensland to adapt to the effects of climate change.

Domestic Emissions

- 5.51 Labor will implement energy efficiency measures and incorporate climate and environmental sustainability across the economy, including:
 - water supply, distribution and use
 - energy generation, distribution and use, including time-of-use and demand management tariffs and Virtual Net Metering for commercial and residential customers
 - government services and procurement
 - transport, logistics and distribution
 - infrastructure investments
 - land use planning and building design
 - consideration of the climate impacts of all new government projects, pursuing net zero emissions targets through project design and mitigation action
 - Zero net carbon emissions in Queensland by 2050.
- 5.52 Labor will increase the production and use of renewable energy by:
 - implementing targets that align with the National Labor Platform of at least 50% by 2030 whilst putting a downward pressure on electricity prices
 - insisting that the target is contingent on the creation of a new federal agency to assist with the retraining, deployment and compensation of workers impacted by the transition to renewable energy
 - investing in renewable energy research and development to provide schemes to encourage energy efficiency and the uptake of renewable energy
 - ensuring that the electricity grid is able to equitably accept and distribute dispersed renewable energy generation

- developing a plan that incorporates transitioning power generation companies to public renewable energy whilst maintaining public employment and that includes research and development
- facilitation of secure and sustainable employment in clean energy industries
- 50% renewable energy by 2030
- Improving energy efficiency of Queensland's commercial (non-residential) building sector by 50% by 2030
- 50% improvement in residential building energy efficiency performance by 2030
- ensuring the state's generators remain in public ownership and deliver public ownership and investigate opportunities for community ownership models in new large scale renewable energy generation projects as part of a just transition to a clean energy economy, in full consultation with industry stakeholders.

- 5.53 Labor in Government commits to new publicly built, owned and maintained renewable electricity generation and energy storage assets and to prevent privatisation by stealth and to ensure secure, decent jobs and lower electricity prices for Queenslanders. Labor will deliver these assets through both existing and new publicly owned energy entities.
- 5.54 Labor shall investigate solar road policies and further undertake funded research, design and development of solar roads as part of an overall strategy to deal with the challenges of human induced climate change.
- 5.55 In partnership with relevant stakeholders, landholders, Indigenous communities and industry, Labor will trial the production of innovative biofuels and bio-products.
- 5.56 In government, Labor will set carbon budgets for all government agencies against which agencies will have to budget and report against, on a two-yearly basis.
- 5.57 Labor will reduce emissions from land management, transport and industry by:
- strictly controlling land clearing and re-vegetating degraded land including through regulation and incentives
 - supporting primary producers to adopt practices that sequester carbon in soils and perennial vegetation, encouraging carbon farming with the aim of achieving 'zero-net carbon' farms
 - supporting energy-efficient technologies that convert emissions and plant wastes into energy and other bio-industrial products
 - not approving new fossil fuelled power stations without deploying full carbon capture and storage
 - encourage industry to improve its capture and reuse of gases (fugitive emissions) produced by extractive industries for energy use and to minimise unnecessary flaring (and wasting) productive gases
 - investigate the feasibility of implementing carbon capture and storage to existing coal fired power stations and increasing research and development around new technologies that reduce emissions attached to the coal industry
 - agriculture, with support for demonstration projects of 'zero-net carbon' farms and farm management practices
 - develop and deliver a low emission transport strategy which plans for emerging and disruptive technologies as well as changes in transport behaviours, and vehicle ownership and use.

Transitional Arrangements

- 5.58 To facilitate the transition from current fossil fuel dependency to a low emission Queensland economy, Labor in government will:
- deliver a strategy, within this term of government, for a just transition which will identify, develop, and support new job opportunities created by new technologies and industries that are low carbon and climate resilient, particularly in regional areas dominated by emissions intensive and climate-exposed industries
 - identify, support and implement new technologies, systems and policies to put a downward pressure on electricity prices
 - coordinate all areas of government responsibility to take into account climate effects
 - develop community awareness and engagement programs
 - identify, develop and support new job opportunities created by low emission technologies
 - ensure there is protection for low income energy users from significant price rises
 - identify and optimise revenue streams arising from low carbon and climate resilient technologies
 - encourage the development of sustainable, zero carbon industries in regions dominated by unsustainable industries
 - encourage the development of sustainable, zero carbon industries in regions where employment and economic opportunities are dominated by high polluting industries.

NATURAL RESOURCES

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 5.59 Labor acknowledges Queensland's unique and ecologically diverse environment must be protected and managed now and into the future. Labor will therefore follow principles of environmental policy, including:
- the precautionary principle
 - intergenerational equity
 - conservation of biological diversity and ecological integrity.
- 5.60 Labor acknowledges that the prosperity of present and future generations of Queenslanders is dependent on the health of our natural environment and the effective management of all natural resources. Labor understands the interconnection between land management practices and the health of marine environments, most notably through water quality. Labor is committed to sustainably managing the state's natural resources, by implementing the following policies.

Land and Vegetation

- 5.61 Labor will prevent broad-acre clearing and clearing of endangered and threatened ecosystems and essential habitat for threatened species and ecologically sensitive areas.
- 5.62 Noting community concerns about Mulga, Labor will continue to support primary producers to implement sustainable methods for harvesting fodder trees.
- 5.63 Labor will establish programs to revegetate depleted landscapes and ecosystems.
- 5.64 Labor will continue to support programs that reduces soil erosion and sediment loads entering waterways. Labor will provide incentives to property owners to restore high conservation value terrestrial and aquatic ecosystems.

- 5.65 Labor will support primary producers to adopt low-impact practices such as reducing fertilisers and synthetic pesticide use, improved pest weed and animal control and appropriate fire management regimes.
- 5.66 Labor will improve management of rural state land to include environmental targets, and will investigate appropriate mechanisms towards this goal.
- 5.67 Labor will ensure adequate resourcing for monitoring and enforcement of existing vegetation management legislation in conjunction with supporting farmers and the agricultural sector with adequate resources to understand and comply with legislation.
- 5.68 Labor will continue to support farmers to diversify their agricultural crops towards progressively more sustainable options.
- 5.69 Labor will continue to assist Local Government to control invasive pests in rural communities where the presence of such pests provide a significant adverse impact on agricultural and primary industry development and productivity.

Coastal and Marine Management

- 5.70 Labor will ensure coastal development is managed sustainably, for current and future generations, by considering the social and environmental impacts in addition to the economic benefits.
- 5.71 Labor will sustainably manage the coastal and marine zone for current and future generations by reviewing, strengthening and integrating coastal and marine management legislation, and integrating coastal management and marine planning and development assessment.
- 5.72 Labor will ensure the protective function of natural coastal environments (for example, dune systems) is recognised, and where new development is proposed a buffer zone should be provided to allow the natural fluctuation of the foreshore and foreshore ecosystems to continue.
- 5.73 Labor will continue to ensure the public's access to the coastal zone is enhanced.
- 5.74 Labor will protect coastal and marine zones by prohibiting large-scale reclamation within marine parks and wetlands. Reclamation outside marine parks and wetlands must meet strict environmental standards.
- 5.75 Labor will protect coastal and marine zones by prohibiting large-scale reclamation within marine parks and wetlands. Reclamation outside marine parks and wetlands must meet strict environmental standards.
- 5.76 Labor will develop and implement a strategy to increase the connectivity of coastal and marine environments and habitats.

Water

- 5.77 Labor will continue to ensure that Queensland's catchment based water plans will provide sustainable water allocation for the environment, agriculture, industries and population centres.

Labor will also investigate how to increase the sustainable ecological, economic and social resilience of catchments, which will incorporate improving and integrating land use planning, development approval processes, flood mitigation, agricultural and other land use practices, maintaining catchment ecological functions, water quality management and remediating impacts to catchment hydrology (including surface water, underground water and overland flow).

- 5.78 Labor will continue to protect rivers, wetlands, estuaries and groundwater systems by ensuring that seasonal flow regimes are maintained.
- 5.79 Labor will price water to reflect the costs of supply and encourage users to invest in efficient water supply and use.
- 5.80 Labor will improve community resilience and reduce flooding impacts by re-vegetating waterways and upper catchments.
- 5.81 Labor will reinstate natural flow regimes by removing redundant or ineffective in-stream barriers and by ensuring that releases from water storages replicate seasonal flow regimes.
- 5.82 Labor will continue to protect the extent and function of natural wetlands and will restore wetlands that provide important ecosystem functions and services.
- 5.83 Labor will support local water harvesting where it is ecologically sustainable and environmental impacts can be minimized and mitigated.
- 5.84 Labor will ensure that Queensland's urban water supply is resilient to increasing demand and the effects of Climate Change including drought by:
 - introducing demand management strategies to reduce urban water use
 - requiring water efficient appliances and fixtures to be installed in new domestic and commercial buildings, and encouraging rainwater tanks where appropriate
 - requiring new urban development to be water self - reliant to be achieved by incorporating Water Sensitive Urban Design (WSUD), waste water recycling and water efficient housing design
- 5.85 Labor will ensure that new instream dams are only supported where there is a recognised need that cannot be met by alternative options, and where the impact to the environment can be avoided or minimised and, if there are no alternatives, offset.
- 5.86 Labor will monitor and manage water extracted from all aquifers, including the Great Artesian Basin, by all industries, in order to protect the sustainability of the resource and dependent ecosystems. Labor will regulate containment and reinjection of treated CSG water.
- 5.87 Labor will require impacts to water quality from wastewater discharged to waterways by agriculture, mining, urban development and other industries to be offset.
- 5.88 Labor will ensure that impacts to catchment hydrology that occur from diverting waterways will be minimised and mitigated.
- 5.89 Following consultation with relevant stakeholders, Indigenous communities and industry, Labor will introduce legislation to protect river systems which are currently in almost-unchanged condition or with high ecological values in the Channel Country, Cape York, the Gulf and other parts of Queensland.
- 5.90 Labor will continue to implement Queensland's National Water Initiative obligations.
- 5.91 Labor will increase the use of new technologies that will provide continuous, real-time monitoring of water quality.

- 5.92 Labor will continue to improve public consultation processes associated with the management of Queensland's water resources.

Environmental Impacts of Extractive Resources

- 5.93 Labor acknowledges and supports the great contribution the resources industry has made to our state, our economy and our community. Labor also acknowledges that the industry has the potential to cause environmental harm, which can take many years to remediate and can impact on other industries such as agriculture and tourism.
- 5.94 Labor will implement the findings of the 2017 Financial Assurance review and introduce the requirement that resource development (mine, gas and petroleum) sites are progressively and fully rehabilitated.
- 5.95 Labor will subject new coal to liquid fuel projects in Queensland to rigorous scientific and environmental impacts and cost benefit analysis. Labor will prohibit uranium mining and Underground Coal Gasification in Queensland.
- 5.96 Labor will commission an independent, rigorous scientific assessment of oil shale, shale oil and shale gas extraction. The assessment will consider the environmental impact of exploitation of these resources and impacts on other industries including agriculture and tourism. Labor will not proceed with the development of these resources until there has been a public consideration of the environmental impacts of oil shale, shale oil and shale gas extraction, including consideration by ALP State Conference.
- 5.97 Labor will work to reduce Queensland's dependence on fossil fuels and explore new export industries in response to directly declining market demand.
- 5.98 Labor will require independent water models of designated gas development areas. The models will consider spring complexes, groundwater recharge areas and whether there is demonstrated connectivity between targeted coal seams and water supply aquifers.
- 5.99 Labor will continue to improve the standard of environment, social and economic impact assessments of proposed development projects.
- 5.100 Labor will ensure environmental legislation includes calculation of carbon emissions as part of the environmental assessment.

Great Barrier Reef and Marine Conservation

- 5.101 Queensland has an extraordinarily rich and diverse marine environment that includes areas of international significance (for example, the Great Barrier Reef, Moreton Bay, the Great Sandy Straits and the Coral Sea Marine Park). As Queenslanders, we are custodians of these important marine environments and have a responsibility to protect, conserve, rehabilitate and manage them for current and future generations.
- 5.102 Labor recognises that climate change is the greatest long-term threat to the Great Barrier Reef and other marine environments. To address this threat, Labor will introduce policies and programs to reduce Queensland's greenhouse gas emissions and advocate the introduction of a national climate change response framework.

- 5.103 Labor recognizes that poor water quality is the greatest immediate threat to the Great Barrier Reef and other marine environments. As poor catchment management and land use practices are known to degrade marine water quality, Labor will introduce policies and programs to assist landholders and primary producers adopt ecologically sustainable practices. To track achievements, Labor will prepare an annual report on progress in meeting catchment pollution reduction and land use practice change targets.
- 5.104 Labor reaffirms our commitment to marine conservation and will review and strengthen marine and coastal management legislation to protect and conserve Queensland’s important marine environments, while balancing this with the sustainable recreational and commercial use of these areas.
- 5.105 Labor will manage and expand marine conservation programs based on sound scientific evidence and advice, including an investigation and ongoing scientific review of ~~for~~ non-lethal shark monitoring, control, and incident prevention measures that provide an effective level of public safety and recognise the need to protect important and vulnerable marine species.
- 5.106 Labor will facilitate incentives to improve the health of our marine environment through industry-based programs such as the Reef Water Quality Science Program, and through the use of environmental offsets to provide incentives for land holders to protect riparian areas. This includes developing mechanisms to attract and support international investments in programs that will deliver protection outcomes for the Great Barrier Reef.

Dredging and Disposal of Dredged Material

- 5.107 Labor remains committed to prohibiting the dumping of capital dredge spoil within the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area (GBRWhA). Labor will reduce the impacts to the GBRWh from the dumping of maintenance dredge spoil by establishing a maintenance dredging framework consistent with the Reef 2050 Plan. In other state marine waters Labor will ensure that development of new and the operation of existing ports meet world’s best environmental practices.
- 5.108 Labor will investigate utilising dredged spoil for beach nourishment purposes as a means to mitigate coastal erosion.

Waste Management

- 5.109 Labor will apply the principles of circular economy, prioritising resource efficiency and recovery of waste. Labor will support regional economies to become closed-loop systems as much as practicably possible to support new economy jobs and limit resource leakage.
- 5.110 Labor will apply full life cycle management of resources to encourage recycling.
- 5.111 Labor supports the polluter-pays principle and will introduce pricing mechanisms to encourage more efficient use of waste streams to reduce disposal of waste to landfill.
- 5.112 Labor will provide incentives for industries to improve their practices and reduce the amount of waste material they produce.
- 5.113 Labor will promote the principles of Clean Production in all commercial and industrial activities, and will use the State Government’s purchasing policies and other measures to take a leadership role in maximising the use of goods made from recycled and renewable materials.

- 5.114 Labor will recognise the key role that the waste sector plays in supporting the transition to a renewable energy economy by progressing measures to facilitate greater research, exploitation and use of renewable natural gas (biogas) as well as other renewable methods for energy generation and as an input for manufacturing and industrial operations.
- 5.115 Labor will implement programs and penalties to tackle litter and illegal dumping of waste and, in particular, asbestos waste.
- 5.116 Labor investigate phasing out single-use plastic products (including balloons) in consultation with the community, industry and local government.
- 5.117 Labor will ban the ceremonial mass release of balloons at government and non-government events to prevent dangerous plastic waste entering waterways and marine areas.
- 5.118 In the absence of a national framework, Labor will introduce a state-based container deposit scheme.
- 5.119 Labor will encourage the expansion of the Queensland recycling and bio-industrial sector industry by:
- using market-based mechanisms to reduce landfill and make recycling more cost-effective, competitive and marketable
 - implementing measures that will ensure valuable and carbon-rich waste streams are recovered and repurposed, particularly for biofuel, bioenergy and other bio-industrial products
 - educating the community and business to increase participation in recycling schemes
 - investigating ways to beneficially reuse/improve collection of waste from regional areas to processing centres
 - providing incentives to encourage research, development, manufacture, marketing and job creation of products made from recycled and reusable materials.

Landfill

- 5.120 Labor recognises landfill destroys the natural value of areas, increases the prevalence of pests and weeds and is responsible for the emission of greenhouse gases. It is also a burden to nearby residents and businesses. Labor will ensure that the cost of dealing with landfill is borne by the waste generators not by communities.
- 5.121 Labor will set forward volume and tonnage targets for reducing unrecovered resources in waste streams based on improved data collection.
- 5.122 Labor will ensure that landfill sites:
- follow strict environmental guidelines
 - are appropriately planned to ensure adequate buffer zones between nearby homes and businesses
 - ensure the capture and beneficial reuse or safe disposal of methane and other pollutants from landfill sites
 - prioritise closed landfill sites for renewable energy infrastructure, bioenergy cropping, and ecosystem corridors.

Implementation and Transition

- 5.123 Labor will collaborate with stakeholders including traditional owners, landholders, industry peak bodies, unions, regional natural resource management bodies and the conservation sector. Labor will ensure that consultation with traditional owners is undertaken by those authorised to speak for country and, where necessary, will prepare legislation to deliver and adequately resource government departments to monitor and enforce compliance.
- 5.124 Labor will implement a plan to transition Queensland to a low carbon economy.
- 5.125 Labor will provide extension services to primary producers and landholders to assist transition to ecologically sustainable practices and new economy production. Labor will provide reskilling support and development assistance to workers and communities dependent on the fossil fuel resource industry to transition to sustainable industry.
- 5.126 Labor will review and amend the Queensland Environmental Offsets Act 2014 (Qld) to ensure that offsets:
- Are only utilized as a last resort
 - Deliver an actual benefit for affected species and ecosystems
 - Are applied strategically and are legally secure.
- 5.127 Labor will continue to support the community's engagement in the development of Terms of Reference (ToR) for development proposals and the development and implementation of legislation, plans, programs and other government initiatives.

Chapter 6: Healthy Living – a better quality of life for all Queenslanders

LABOR VALUES

- 6.1 Labor values and supports a well-resourced, publicly funded, universal health system that helps Queenslanders achieve and maintain good physical and mental health and well-being.

This health system needs to be effective, coordinated, efficient and sustainable, providing appropriate and timely evidence-based services.

- 6.2 Good health, needs and means more than well-functioning free hospitals and Medicare-funded GP services. Providing all citizens with the best opportunities to live full, happy, healthy and productive lives requires proactive, effective, preventative and protective public health programs, and integration with other government and non-government services.

Such programs need to take account of economic, social, employment and environmental conditions. They need to address, among other things, Queensland's growing, ageing and highly decentralised population, as well as Queensland's great cultural, social, cultural, economic and infrastructure diversity.

- 6.3 Attaining a better quality of life for current and future generations of Queenslanders is the responsibility of all Queenslanders. Commonwealth, state and local governments, community-based organisations, private health services, families and individuals must all be involved in maximising the health potential of this state through investment in:
- action and incentives to maintain wellness, both mental and physical
 - prevention of disease and injury
 - early detection and treatment of disease
 - appropriate hospital and community-based treatment, care, rehabilitation, palliation, and support for living and dying with dignity
 - easing suffering and minimising disability
 - research to foster innovation and the sharing of effective practices shown to improve specific services and the health of individuals and communities
 - education and positive cultural change for the public and for the health workforce
 - equity, by addressing socio-economic disadvantage and the social determinants of health
 - the provision of frameworks that support community and society, to ensure access, information, education and assistance so all can participate and benefit
 - coordinated service delivery that delivers patient outcomes.

- 6.4 A comprehensive whole-of-government and whole-of-community approach is essential to ensure that healthy choices are always easy choices and that needed services are readily accessible and affordable by all sectors of society.

Broad partnerships and opportunities for action need to be established among government, non-government and private sectors to guarantee access for all.

- 6.5 The core goals Labor seeks to achieve for the health of Queenslanders are:
- access to safe, ethical and quality services for enhancing well-being and treating illness and injury
 - access that maintains dignity and self-determination

- access to healthcare services that are updated in line with current research and national and international best practice
- timely receipt of services without catastrophic financial consequences for both individuals and communities
- innovative, patient and community-focussed, cost-effective processes for delivering public health by using all available appropriate resources most effectively
- involvement of all sectors and communities in the planning, design, delivery and oversight of services for a healthier Queensland.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 6.7 Labor believes in strengthening our publicly funded health and mental health system so that all Queenslanders can always obtain quality, affordable primary, acute and chronic health care if and when they need it, regardless of their wealth, sex, gender, gender identity, intersex status, sexual orientation, age, ethnic background, or location.
- 6.8 Labor believes that public hospitals and health services should be owned, managed and operated by the state.
- 6.9 Labor believes in taking the longer-term view of health by investing in education, primary health care, research, health promotion and illness prevention, and by focusing on good health rather than ill health. This way Queenslanders can make healthy choices, live healthier lives, and thereby reduce the burden of chronic disease on our health services, and ensure a healthier and more productive society.
- 6.10 Labor believes that sound prevention investments will save several-fold in treatment costs.
- 6.11 Labor believes good health involves physical, mental and social well-being, rather than merely the absence of disease or infirmity.
- 6.12 Labor believes in providing person and community-centred services that take account of individual differences, preferences and cultural diversity, and are designed to promote ease of access, navigation and continuity of care.
- 6.13 Labor believes in providing community based safe housing as an option for people presenting at risk of suicide or with suicide ideation, and for those transitioning from mental health services back into the community, in order to gain appropriate support and care during their time of risk.
- 6.14 Labor believes that developing whole-of-government links is vital to promoting healthy outcomes for the whole population.
- 6.15 Labor believes in partnering with individuals and education providers to ensure that an appropriately qualified, culturally competent, clinically skilled, and experienced health and community workforce is available to provide the services required now and into the future.
- 6.16 Labor believes in facilitating open, transparent reporting and public accountability regarding the provision of health services, within a supportive culture that encourages proactive revision of current practices, improvement and innovation.
- 6.17 Labor believes in engaging consumers, carers, health-service providers, clinicians, local communities, non-government organisations and unions in active partnerships to address:

- all aspects of advocacy
- the planning, implementing, monitoring and evaluating of health policy
- service delivery and societal engagement
- the identification of efficiencies within the system to ensure sustainability of quality health care for the public and service delivery providers alike.

6.18 Labor believes in ensuring that evidence-based value for money is a primary consideration in its policy and service delivery for healthy living.

6.19 Labor believes in building a skilled, valued and sustainable workforce within a system that is efficient and delivers safe, quality, patient-focused services.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

6.20 Labor will continue to restore harmony to the health system and promote negotiated solutions to manage change.

6.21 Labor will promote the department's role as the System Manager of Queensland Health, providing strategic direction and coordination to:

- ensure appropriate provision of community services as well as hospital-based services
- regulation/licensing necessary for safe provision of services and to address any failings that may arise from time to time
- co-ordinate the relationships among hospital and health services, primary health networks, ambulance, NGOs and private providers to foster continuity of care for people with complex health needs, both mental and physical
- prevent expensive duplication of services across sectors and hospital and health services
- improve transparency and clarity for waiting times, demand, activity and waiting list management for public hospitals
- work with the private sector to ensure that public and private health services complement each other
- ensure there is adequate publicly funded services for high needs groups, including those who need to access treatment for alcohol, tobacco and other drugs

6.22 Labor will not outsource or privatise any current service managed and delivered by Queensland Health. Labor will insource services currently delivered by the private sector where it is financially viable.

6.23 Labor will continue ongoing support for a separately funded Health Promotion and Prevention Commission to build both whole-of-system and local capacity across a range of health promotion and prevention priorities, including the social determinants of health and the effects of the determinants on health inequity.

This Commission will work with local health and hospital authorities, primary health networks, and other entities, including industry or community organisations, university or other educational or research institutions, and local government, to promote health and well-being, ensuring and expanding the range of early detection and early intervention services across all areas of developmental, physical and mental health through educational and clinical programs, for effective, on-going management and continuity of care.

Further, this Commission will partner with HHSs and local services and other entities for providing primary health care where people live, work and shop, to promote better health and well-being. The partnerships will focus on promoting healthy lifestyles and healthy communities towards the goal of making Queenslanders the healthiest people in the world.

Concurrently, Labor in government considers it essential that Queensland Health will also maintain and, indeed strengthen, a central health promotion and prevention capacity in the Department, which was brutally cut by the previous LNP State Government, to ensure a strong ability to conduct effective state-wide health promotion campaigns, gather and report meaningful health promotion data, epidemiology and trends, maintain various statutory health promotions requirements (i.e. food safety, water safety, radiation safety, etc) as well as ensure the fair and equitable distribution and coordination of scarce health promotion resources such as cancer screening mobile facilities. Labor regards this as an essential function of good government and will work to enhance and build through further funding wherever possible.

This central section of the Department of Health will focus on:

- the promotion of good mental health
- the identification of people at risk of suicide and referrals to appropriate services and support programs
- the promotion and resourcing of positive mental health programs such as Mates in Construction and other similar, especially initiatives in high risk industries
- health education programs to improve health literacy in a range of clinical and community settings
- positive social marketing for health well-being
- the prevention of chronic physical illness and injury
- the promotion of good nutrition and physical activity
- prevention of the spread of communicable disease
- the promotion of good sun safety
- promotion of safety of food, water, environment and radiation use
- the implementation of proven harm reduction strategies from alcohol, tobacco and other drugs
- sexual disease services health and disease prevention
- appropriate services for the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning community, young Queenslanders, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and disadvantaged Queenslanders
- vaccination and cancer screening services.
- addressing the social determinants of health, including commissioning academic research to establish baseline data for these determinants of health and the effects of these determinants on health inequity in Queensland.

6.24 Labor will ensure all publicly funded health services encourage and facilitate the participation of patients and clients in the Australian Government's personally controlled electronic health record system (My Health Record). Further, public and contracted health services will promote the use of contemporary health technologies such as imaging, decision support, genomics, data analytics, telehealth and eHealth information systems to:

- improve access to and support for, specialist services including acute and emergency care
- provide more timely discharge information to treating clinicians and services
- provide services to rural and remote communities to lower the travel costs of patients, their families and the hospital and health services
- provide information on the local health precinct
- improve access to routine screening and to allied health services
- Improve access to health and community professional education
- provide key statistical information on service delivery, chronic disease, health care outcomes and community health
- provide multi-functional business hubs for education, professional trade and skills training, community consultation and exchange.

- 6.25 Labor will empower families, individuals and communities to adopt healthy lifestyles and improve levels of physical activity for public health. Labor in government will develop and adopt a new whole-of-government Strategy to further improve the levels of Physical Activity in Queensland, in line with the National Physical Activity and Sedentary Behaviour Guidelines, that will see Queenslanders become the most physically active population in Australia by 2020.
- 6.26 Labor will ensure all Queenslanders, including older Queenslanders, regardless of where they live, have access to palliative care so they are afforded dignity as they reach end of life.
- 6.27 Other key strategic priorities will:
- design, establish and evaluate services in partnership with consumers, carers, clinicians, health care providers, local government and the community
 - enable the full use of professional scopes of practice for all health practitioners and their assistants, to meet the clinical needs and quality expectations of the public and improve efficiency
 - improve cooperation between medical research and health services to enable a more efficient and effective translation of research into practice
 - report on performance indicators in an annual public health report that includes reporting on service delivery and efficiency, physical and mental illness and community indicators of wellness
 - establish and evaluate a variety of models of treatment, supportive accommodation and services, for people with disabilities or who need rehabilitation, convalescence or palliative care outside the public acute hospital system, in home-like, age-appropriate settings
 - invest in programs, initiatives and research to attract health care professionals to regional and remote areas
 - commit to technological innovation that empowers regional and remote communities to access specialists and healthcare professionals on a needs basis
 - enhance community midwifery programs to minimise risk for parents and infants, ensuring the best possible life start for new Queenslanders, and aid in great early parenting
 - establish a new community based safe housing model of care, support and treatment for suicide prevention and people transitioning from mental health services back into the community
 - ease suffering and provide support for patients and families faced with life limiting illness through provision of:
 - palliative care expertise including bereavement care within Hospital and Health System (HHS) or equivalent
 - specialist interdisciplinary palliative care teams in every HHS
 - support for creation of hospices in each HHS or equivalent
 - mandatory palliative care education for all relevant HHS clinical staff
 - Labor will act to introduce fluoride to water systems state-wide to protect the teeth of our children.
- 6.28 Labor will provide an effective education program on the importance of childhood vaccination, particularly to vulnerable groups and newly arrived migrant communities. Labor will also undertake a program to identify children who are overdue for vaccination and offer their families assistance to bring their child up to date.

Labor will also provide an effective education program on Ryan's Rule – Queensland Health's three step process that support patients, their families and carers, to raise concerns if a patient's health condition is getting worse or not improving as well as expected.

- 6.29 Labor recognises the enormous increase in suicide among Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young peoples and is committed to early intervention and prevention through innovative practices and support structures with community-led organisations.
- 6.30 Labor will ensure suitable funding to targeted services which address socialisation, homelessness and abuse of LGBTIQ and other vulnerable communities including ATSI and migrant communities, and consider delivering them on both a statewide and region-specific basis.
- 6.31 Labor recognises the substantial increase in the use of synthetic drugs among our young people and is committed to early intervention and prevention through innovative practices and support structures, working in partnership with community-led organisations in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.

Enhancing Services for Specific Populations

- 6.32 Labor will partner with the Commonwealth, local governments and Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander controlled community health organisations to improve health promotion, illness prevention, early detection and treatment services for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, to close the gap in health status and life expectancy between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and other Australians. Addressing a range of social determinants of health such as housing, employment, education and economic development will be central to this work as it will enhance environmental health, water supply and sewerage provision.
- 6.33 Labor will introduce integrated health checks in all Queensland Health and hospital services to promote early detection and effective, ongoing management of people at high risk of developing chronic diseases such as asthma, diabetes, cardiovascular and kidney disease and mental illness.
- 6.34 Labor commits to resourcing adequately, drug and alcohol services that include early intervention and prevention, harm reduction and rehabilitation in urban, regional and remote Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, in partnership with Aboriginal controlled community health organisations.
- 6.35 Labor commits to investigating how early intervention screening tools can be more accessible and affordable to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.
- 6.36 Labor recognises the importance of having culturally appropriate services and identified positions and commits to continuing and increasing access to these services and opportunities for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. Addressing a range of social determinants of health such as housing, employment, education and economic development will be central to this work, as it will enhance environmental health, water supply and sewerage provision and be central to reducing economic, social and health disparities between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and non-Indigenous Australians.
- 6.37 Labor will work with resource communities, the resources industry, and health and air quality experts to ensure that those living in proximity to resources developments are protected from air, noise and vibration impacts of extractive industry activities.

Further, Labor will mandate air quality monitoring in resource communities to ensure that air, noise and vibration impacts are maintained to equal or below best practice benchmarks in proximity to towns, communities and other land-uses deemed sensitive. Labor will mandate safe levels of dust in underground and aboveground mine sites with stringent monitoring and reporting mechanisms to prevent coal dust inhalation.

- 6.38 Labor will provide accessible, culturally appropriate mental illness prevention, early detection and intervention services, and recovery orientated support services across all communities including newly arrived migrants, refugees, regional, rural and remote, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Intersex and Questioning/Queer people, those living without carer support, the homeless and those held in custody. This will include a model for stepped care that includes self-help, peer-based and online services integrated with existing community to bed-based treatment services through clear treatment pathways, and provided by a mental health and/or social and emotional well-being health support workforce of clinical staff and staff with lived experience of mental illness. Labor acknowledges the impact of cross-generational trauma for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and will ensure these strategies take account of that history and personal experience across their communities. Young vulnerable people at high risk of self-harm require our particular attention.
- 6.39 Labor will adopt the principle of free health care in our Queensland public health facilities for asylum seekers, refugees, and holders of temporary compassionate visas.
- 6.40 Labor reaffirms its opposition to discrimination in all its forms. Accordingly, the government will conduct a review of the processes through which a child identifying as transgender is able to access appropriate hormone and support services by July 2019. The current system requiring the matter to be adjudicated by a court is both traumatising and expensive. Labor will consider alternative pathways, involving assessment and counselling from clinicians and qualified psychologists, in consultation with the individual and his/her family or carers, to allow professional, inclusive and less intrusive assessments to be made and appropriate treatment regimes to be engaged.
- 6.41 Labor supports the introduction of an Occupational Exposure Limit (OEL) for respirable coal dust (including mixed mineral coal mine dust) in line with international best practice.
- Labor supports amending section 89 of the Coal Mining Safety and Health Regulation 2001 (Qld) to mirror the OEL requirement.
- 6.42 Labor will enhance mental health services through a model of shared service provision and collaboration across government sectors, and between the non-government sector and the government sector that encourages open dialogue and collaborative case management and support.
- 6.43 Labor will develop comprehensive reproductive health services, including pregnancy counselling, post-natal infant care, fertility and termination procedures, particularly for Queenslanders in regional and remote areas.
- 6.44 Labor will work towards ensuring that rehabilitation services across all age groups are available in regional and remote areas
- 6.45 Labor will work to improve the sexual health of all Queenslanders by implementing the Queensland Sexual Health Strategy 2016-2021 and further seek to achieve the national goal of ending HIV transmission by 2020 through improved clinical and diagnostic services, increasing access to testing, counselling and on-going support and by developing collaborative relationships with all relevant community based organisations, particularly those who represent the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning community.
- 6.46 Labor will extend the current trial of subsidised access to Pre-exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP) throughout Queensland including in regional and remote areas. Labor will focus on at risk populations and will work with the federal government through a coordinated national health strategy to prevent HIV and to include Pre-exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP) on the Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme.

- 6.47 Labor will provide specific harm-reduction programs addressing problematic drinking, smoking and recreational drug use in the at-risk community, including lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning people.
- 6.48 Labor will move to act to prevent the professional registration of any person who offers or proposes to offer reparative therapy as an approach to responding to same-sex attraction and/or gender dysphoria.
- 6.49 Labor will ensure that pre-hospital patient care will be an integral part of the Queensland health system model of care, coordinating relationships between the ambulance service and public and private health care providers.

Chapter 7: Building Connected Communities

LABOR VALUES

- 7.1 Building communities that are liveable requires foresight, good planning, and provision of the services that people need in their local area. The policy areas of planning, local government, housing, transport and communications have obvious interconnections and all contribute to the quality of lifestyle enjoyed by Queenslanders.
- 7.2 As we deal with the challenges brought by ongoing growth in Queensland, we need to ensure that people can easily access employment, whether they do so by travelling to work or by telecommuting. Good planning and infrastructure provision can make commutes to and from work faster and more efficient, leaving more time for Queenslanders to spend with their family. The provision of high speed broadband will enable Queenslanders to embrace more flexible work options and to work and access services from home.
- 7.3 The provision of the best possible transport and telecommunications infrastructure where and when it is needed can drive the economic growth opportunities of the future.

Queensland residents and businesses benefit from a transport network that operates efficiently and moves people and goods quickly. The role of public transport is critical in connecting people with employment and recreational activities. Our communities will benefit from increasing the amenity of walking and cycling to become increasingly viable commuting options.

- 7.4 Labor has a vision for a Queensland where the integration of policy objectives in these areas is the first priority of government, not an afterthought.

HOUSING

LABOR BELIEFS

- 7.5 Access to safe, secure and sustainable housing – a place to call home – is a basic right of all Queenslanders.
- 7.6 Government intervention, through direct provision of housing products and services, is required for those who are unable to obtain safe, secure and sustainable housing in the private market. Government directly influences private and community housing sectors through the development and implementation of housing legislation and policy that provides housing options, products, services and pathways for all Queenslanders.
- 7.7 Labor recognises that home ownership will continue to be a goal for many Queenslanders across the state. Labor supports this goal, including the development of specific housing products and services for low and middle-income earners.
- 7.8 Queenslanders that require access to public housing and other housing products and services should be able to access these wherever they live in the state.
- 7.9 Ongoing effort must be made across government to reduce homelessness. The focus of homelessness must be to support those at risk of experiencing or overcoming the issues that lead to homelessness. Labor believes government has a role in assisting people experiencing homelessness to live with dignity. Local communities, residents and representative groups should be involved wherever possible in decisions relating to the planning, development, management and operation of public housing.

- 7.10 Labor believes that the establishing of an independent umpire for housing is important to ensure quality housing outcomes for all Queenslanders.
- 7.11 Labor recognises that homelessness is diverse and multifaceted. Labor understands that there is:
- Primary homelessness, which is experienced by people without conventional accommodation
 - Secondary homelessness, which is experienced by people who frequently move from one temporary shelter to another
 - Tertiary homelessness, which is experienced by people staying in accommodation that falls below minimum community standards

Labor policies and programs should be aimed at reducing these categories of homelessness and the underlying systemic issues.

- 7.12 Labor will investigate methods to provide warm, adequate showers and washing facilities for people experiencing homelessness, including the upgrading of existing public facilities for this purpose.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

Assistance to Tenants

- 7.13 Labor will continue to support all types of renters across the state by ensuring that there are legislative protections in place and avenues available to seek independent support, guidance and advocacy including right of appeal against listing on tenant databases.
- 7.14 Labor will work with all levels of government, the private and community sectors to develop a comprehensive housing pathway for Queenslanders.
- 7.15 Labor will review the private rental housing system to encourage lessors to provide for longer tenure options for tenants, including the introduction of 'prescribed grounds for eviction'.
- 7.16 Labor will introduce legislation that will provide additional consumer protection to older Queenslanders living in retirement villages. These changes will see fairer exit and reinstatement processes, as well as standard form contracts, giving residents peace of mind, and legal and financial security.
- 7.17 Labor will establish an independent Housing Ombudsman to provide a clear avenue for independent advice and assessment of any housing-related complaints

Housing Liveability and Design

- 7.18 Labor recognises that some groups in the community have specific housing needs. Labor will research the extent and scope of this problem and tailor housing programs and develop accommodation types that recognise and cater to these specific needs as part of the Queensland Housing Strategy.
- 7.19 Labor acknowledges that with an ageing population and the specific needs of people is changing the way we need to plan and design for future housing need in Queensland. Labor will continue to actively promote the adoption of Liveable Housing Design principles across the housing industry to achieve greater accessibility and universal design in housing across Queensland.

- 7.20 Labor recognises the need to target housing for vulnerable women who may be experiencing domestic and family violence.
- 7.21 Labor recognises the need for housing across Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities and commits to developing an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander housing strategy, identifying public housing stock in urban, regional and remote locations.

Funding and Innovative Housing Finance

- 7.22 Labor will support the National Affordable Housing Agreement as the mechanism for ensuring that adequate Commonwealth and state funds are guaranteed for secure and affordable housing programs.
- 7.23 Labor will work with the private and community sectors, including the housing finance sector, to explore sustainable financing models that improve the affordability of housing across Queensland.
- 7.24 Labor will encourage financial institutions to provide finance for innovative housing development proposals.
- 7.25 Labor will partner with the private and community sectors to develop innovative housing solutions aiming at increasing housing across the state.
- 7.26 Labor will develop a range of packages that will support people to achieve their housing goals, whether it be to move out of home for the first time, enter the private rental market, purchase their own home or move into seniors living.
- 7.27 Labor will support moves to target home owners with assistance, tax relief mechanisms and similar grants towards low income households.

Housing Cost, Regulation and Development of Affordable Housing

- 7.28 Labor will monitor the adequacy of stocks of serviced land throughout Queensland to avoid price escalation caused by shortages.
- 7.29 Labor will regularly review building codes and regulations, housing and development standards and private regulations through developer's covenants with a view to removing obsolete and inconsistent requirements that impose unnecessary costs without significantly enhancing amenities.
- 7.30 Labor will assist in the development of innovative housing projects using sustainable and liveable planning and design methods while maintaining standards.
- 7.31 Labor will amend legislation to provide affordable housing across the state in areas of housing need where planning changes and urban renewal permit redevelopment.
- 7.32 Labor will partner with and facilitate industry and public superannuation funds to facilitate the provision of affordable housing on previously unreleased State Government land through prudential investment of funds, and the extent of this investment is to be reported annually to members.

7.33 Labor recognises the need for social and affordable housing to be accessible to Queenslanders wherever they live. Labor will explore the introduction of inclusionary zoning that requires a minimum of 10% of all residential development to be set aside for social and affordable housing.

Public Housing

7.34 Labor will increase the stock of public housing available for Queenslanders.

7.35 Labor will increase the public housing stock through a combination of public tender and direct construction, acquisition through spot purchase, restoration and rehabilitation of existing structurally sound dwellings, and promoting redevelopment renewal programs.

7.36 Labor will work towards the diversification of public housing by creating opportunity for social, affordable and mixed housing outcomes and by offering a range of products including no interest loans and appropriate support to long term tenants; as well as advocating for improved investment and goodwill from all levels of government to prioritise diversification of public housing stock.

7.37 Labor will continue to investigate opportunities to enter into innovative housing projects such as public private partnerships and joint ventures that deliver value to the people of Queensland.

7.38 Labor will install solar panels on and implement improvements to the energy and water efficiency of public housing.

TRANSPORT

LABOR BELIEFS

- 7.39 Labor believes in a transport system that is:
- a public good, to be provided in the public interest to all Queenslanders, with community service obligation payments where necessary
 - safe for users and for those who build, operate and maintain it
 - sustainable, and considers environmental, social and health impacts
 - affordable and accessible for all members of the community
 - efficient, integrated, connected and reliable, and supports growth of the economy
 - well planned in consultation with the community, with corridors secured in advance of development
 - facilitates and contributes to the just transition to a low carbon economy
 - encouraging of walking and cycling as a commuting option through increasing the application of passive sun protection.

Policy and Planning

7.40 Labor will deliver integrated regional transport plans in conjunction with regional land use plans in all urban areas across Queensland that is fit for purpose, encouraging economic growth and investment in all regional areas.

7.41 Labor will implement targets to increase public and active transport usage.

7.42 Labor will consider demand management measures where appropriate and equitable.

- 7.43 Labor will consider increased penalties for wilful damage to transport infrastructure, noting the safety and efficiency costs.
- 7.44 Labor recognises the particular vulnerability of public transport workers to physical assault and will improve safety and security. Labor will increase penalties for people found guilty of assaulting public transport workers.

Public Transport

- 7.45 Labor will maintain Queensland Rail and Brisbane Transport as vertically integrated, publicly owned providers of public transport services.
- 7.46 Labor will pursue improvements to the coordination and connectivity of the public transport system with the goal of reducing the inequality currently suffered by regional Queenslanders.
- 7.47 Labor will build an inner-city rail solution consistent with the Cross-River Rail capacity outcome as part of a broader vision to revitalise and transform rail services. It will increase frequency and provide more express services. It will also deliver new links, including to Flagstone, Ripley, Coolangatta, Maroochydore and through the North-West Rail Link along the Trouts Road corridor, consistent with the SEQ Connecting 2031 transport strategy.
- 7.48 Labor will extend Brisbane's world-class busway network, including completing the Eastern and Northern Busways, CoastConnect on the Sunshine Coast, and rolling out more high frequency routes and bus priority lanes.
- 7.49 Labor will complete the extension of the Springfield to Ipswich line and provide appropriate infrastructure to support the line's functionality.
- 7.50 Labor will complete the Gold Coast light rail from Helensvale to Coolangatta and consider the feasibility of light rail in other corridors.
- 7.51 Labor will upgrade public transport stops and station infrastructure to ensure safety, accessibility, amenity and additional park and ride facilities for those who use and operate the system.
- 7.52 Labor will systematically identify and appropriately treat the most dangerous level crossings in Queensland.
- 7.53 Labor will maintain public transport concessions.
- 7.54 Labor will continue to subsidise and improve public transport services, including in provincial centres, with a funding requirement being world's best practice by contractors.
- 7.55 Labor will ensure that all communities have access to affordable public transport services to connect them to the rest of Queensland, including TravelTrain, long distance bus and air services, negotiating with all stakeholders in regional areas with specific focus on the changing modes of employment utilised in Queensland.
- 7.56 Labor supports the implementation of flexible public transport options to increase active public transport usage in regional centres, to deliver better public transport services and ensure more productive use of state assisted transport funding.
- 7.57 Labor will release regular public reports against both performance measures and funding provided for all subsidised public transport services.

Taxis

- 7.58 Labor will maintain regulation of the taxi industry to ensure it meets high standards of safety, service quality, responsiveness and accessibility.
- 7.59 Labor will consider options to enable competing taxi companies in a single market to cooperate where there is benefit for users.
- 7.60 Labor will investigate the use of taxis to provide public transport where other services are not viable.
- 7.61 Labor will roll out additional secure taxi ranks where required.
- 7.62 Labor will ensure that all taxi districts have adequate provision of wheelchair accessible taxis, including providing incentives for conversion, and it will implement a passenger lift fee.
- 7.63 Labor will regularly publish taxi performance measures where government subsidies are provided.

Active Transport

- 7.64 Labor will expand the dedicated cycling network along key corridors, including disused rail lines, and ensure that active transport facilities are included in all new and upgraded roads.
- 7.65 Labor will pursue measures to ensure end of trip facilities are included in new buildings where appropriate, to encourage active transport.
- 7.66 Labor will encourage greater use of public and active transport for school travel.
- 7.67 Labor will investigate the implementation of shading at key pedestrian waiting points and the viability of shaded pedestrian walkways as a complementary transport and recreation system.

Freight

- 7.68 Labor will implement strategies to increase mode share for rail freight on defined strategic rail freight networks.
- 7.69 Labor understands there is community concern regarding coal dust adjacent to rail corridors in Brisbane.
- 7.70 Labor supports an independent, scientific review of mitigation treatments and will implement best practices and support further technological improvements in this area.
- 7.71 Labor supports consultation with the relevant industry, union and community groups as the coal industry grows in Queensland.
- 7.72 Labor will develop and publish a plan for the progressive priority upgrade of the North Coast Rail Line, to improve safety, efficiency and reliability.
- 7.73 Labor will support construction of the Toowoomba Second Range Crossing and Gowrie to Grandchester rail line, with other levels of government and the private sector.

- 7.74 Labor will invest in removing conflicts between passenger and rail freight movements where they share the same corridor.
- 7.75 Labor will enable construction of the Surat Basin Railway with appropriate provision for its potential future role as part of an inland railway.

Roads

- 7.76 Labor will plan, design and build roads which are fit for purpose, future-proofed, and to standards which meet the needs of road users and the wider community.
- 7.77 Labor understands that road infrastructure is critical to sustaining regional and rural communities and will therefore ensure that a fair proportion of road funding is allocated to regional Queensland.
- 7.78 Labor will always engage in public consultation and integrated planning approaches, to new road works.
- 7.79 Labor will continue to provide fair and just compensation for private property owners directly and adversely affected by road construction.
- 7.80 Labor will develop and publish a plan for the progressive priority upgrade of the Bruce Highway and the construction and upgrade of other major roads which will unlock Queensland's, and support the state's, economic potential, such as the Warrego Highway, the Toowoomba Second Range Crossing, the Ipswich Motorway, and roads which support and maintain Queensland's regional economy.
- 7.81 Labor will review and consider reforms to calculating motor vehicle registration.
- 7.82 Labor will make early plans for potential future transport corridors to provide more confidence to local land owners and potential investors. This will be done in consultation with Local Government and communities.

Safety and Security

- 7.83 Labor will implement strategies based on world's best practice, and thorough research to reduce the road toll and improve road safety.
- 7.84 Labor will trial mobile cameras to monitor school crossing hot spots where crossing supervisors have had close misses or injuries from vehicles not stopping.
- 7.85 Labor will expand the coverage of security services and officers across the public transport network to improve safety for users, constructors, operators and maintainers.
- 7.86 Labor will regulate the hours of work for train crew to ensure safety and investigate regulation of hours of work for other transport operators.
- 7.87 Labor will maintain and strictly enforce chain of responsibility legislation for the trucking industry and implement a regulatory system to provide adequate and ongoing training to heavy vehicle operators to an accredited standard.
- 7.88 Labor will prioritise and progressively deliver grade separations and other safety measures at rail level crossings.

Maritime

- 7.89 Labor will work closely with the Australian Government to ensure the highest standards of safety and environmental protection at sea.
- 7.90 Labor will continue to roll out infrastructure improvements for recreational boat users.

Australian Government

- 7.91 Labor will lobby the Australian Government to provide increased transport funding for Queensland based on the decentralised nature of the state and to reduce congestion, with a particular emphasis on the Bruce Highway, Gold Coast Light Rail, Cross River Rail, the Pacific Motorway, Ipswich Motorway and North Coast Rail Line, without asset recycling.
- 7.92 Labor will lobby the Australian Government to maintain the Road Safety Remuneration Tribunal as an important safety initiative and in the absence of Commonwealth regulation pursue enhanced State Government regulation to provide for safe rates in the transport industry in Queensland.
- 7.93 Labor will encourage the Australian Government to proceed with a premium performance and 21st century alignment of inland rail through to Brisbane.
- 7.94 Labor will encourage the Australian Government to include purchase of public transport tickets in salary packaging arrangements.

INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATIONS TECHNOLOGY

LABOR BELIEFS

- 7.95 Labor supports the provision of a National Broadband Network that will underpin the digital economy in Queensland by providing high speed broadband services for residential and business use. These services will:
 - future proof broadband infrastructure in terms of increased speed and increased demand
 - provide broadband services on an equitable basis regardless of where people live, the socio-economic status of their suburb, or regional location
 - support telecommunications competition reforms that provide multiple service providers open access to broadband infrastructure
 - provide sufficient bi-directional bandwidth and quality of service to effectively deliver real time services for health, education, broadcasting and business use.
- 7.96 Labor recognises that the inclusion of all sectors of the community in the digital economy must be a key element of plans to tackle unemployment and underemployment and to create a thriving economy. Digital technologies and the NBN open up new employment opportunities by enabling the formation of micro-businesses, social enterprises and e-traders, throughout the whole state.
- 7.97 An efficient, integrated communications network underpins the delivery of government, business, health, education, transport, electricity and information services.
- 7.98 Broadband access and internet services should be available on an equitable and affordable basis.
- 7.99 Labor reaffirms its commitment to open government based on citizen-focused services and accessible, transparent data.

7.100 Labor believes all infrastructure and assets that are owned by government entities (including electricity distributors) and are used to provide telecommunications services should remain in public ownership.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

Connected Communities

7.101 Labor supports the formation of community and industry alliances to aggregate demand and funding for networks that extend the reach of the NBN in regional Queensland. Labor also encourages major telecommunications carriers, electricity transmission providers and road and rail authorities to cooperate in the development of open access fibre optic and wireless communications infrastructure.

7.102 Labor proposes that a Digital Economy Strategy should support:

- the creation of Connected Neighbourhood Charters and funding partnerships for developing regional digital “blueprints” or “masterplans”
- inclusive and affordable access to digital technologies, devices and services for low income earners or unemployed people who most need to access new employment and skills opportunities
- investment programs in ICT research and development.

7.103 Labor supports and encourages initiatives that:

- foster innovation in sectors including the creative industries, tourism, and online provision of goods and services, as well as the development of intelligent transport systems
- promote digital inclusion, ensuring that all residents can access the online services, technologies, applications, content and information that they need to engage in the digital, connected community
- improve the health and safety of communities through better coordination of health, emergency, police and volunteers in times of community crisis such as natural disasters.

7.104 Labor will seek from telecommunications carriers Community Service Obligations that guarantee the availability and quality of voice, broadband, mobile phone and payphone services, and reliability, connection and repair times.

7.105 Labor will seek opportunities to unlock Queensland Government telecommunication assets to improve access to digital capability for Queenslanders, particularly those in regional and remote communities.

Participation in the Digital Economy

7.106 Labor supports services designed to make government data available to the public, in line with the principle recognised in the Right to Information Act 2009 (Qld) that government data is a public resource that should, by default, be available for access and reuse. Government data (such as meteorological, geosciences and agricultural data) should be:

- provided under permissive copyright licences such as Creative Commons
- made available in open data formats that facilitate reuse and are not locked into a specific product or technology
- provided in a computer-readable form so that it can be analysed or used to create new applications and services
- supplied with relevant metadata (for example, date of creation, author, keywords).

- 7.107 Labor supports efforts to ensure that a range of members of the community, which is as broad as possible and specifically includes people with disabilities and special needs, has affordable access to up to date computing and communication services, including through public libraries, schools and community organisations.
- 7.108 Labor is committed to ensuring that websites, digital content and services are designed in compliance with accessibility standards so that the widest range of people (including those with impaired sight, hearing or mobility) can readily access the internet, use government services, locate information, communicate, and engage in transactions online.
- 7.109 Labor supports the strengthening of privacy protections using legal, technical and administrative safeguards for individuals in the online environment, through prohibitions on intrusion by government and business into individuals' personal privacy.
- 7.110 Labor supports the coordinated delivery of citizen-focused healthcare services by private, public, community and national providers, supported by access to electronic patient and provider data, and health information services.

Investment and Training in the Digital Economy

- 7.111 Labor believes that a central agency should review and advise on the procurement of government ICT, ensure that duplication, wastage, delays and inefficiency are eliminated, and through improvements in government service delivery maximise the overall financial value and benefit of ICT to the community.
- 7.112 Labor believes that an appropriately skilled workforce is required for growth of the digital economy. Labor supports the development of a workforce strategy that will:
 - ensure appropriate courses are available in schools, Adult Education and TAFE
 - develop industry-based training and mentoring programs (including within public sector agencies) designed to enable IT graduates to gain industry experience
 - provide increased opportunities for training for teachers in the application of ICT in learning and teaching, to enhance their capacities to teach ICT literacy and skills.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

LABOR BELIEFS

- 7.113 Labor reaffirms its commitment to the principles of local government, namely:
 - transparent and effective processes and decision-making in the public interest;
 - sustainable development and management of assets and infrastructure and delivery of effective services;
 - democratic representation, social inclusion and meaningful community engagement;
 - good governance; and
 - ethical and legal behaviour of councillors and council employees.
- 7.114 Local government is the level of government closest to the community. Every day it affects the lives of Queenslanders – our local services, where we live, and the look and feel of our communities.

Local government decision-making must be open and inclusive of local communities. Labor supports the use of technology in supporting transparency of local government processes and decision-making.

- 7.115 Local government is a genuine partner in the Australian governmental system.
- 7.116 The potential of local government is best realised when the roles and responsibilities of local government are constitutionally recognised.
- 7.117 The State Government has a responsibility to consult with local governments on matters that affect local communities.
- 7.118 Labor will ensure that local government elections are conducted in a fair and democratic fashion.
- 7.119 Local governments should be adequately resourced to ensure they can fulfil the functions required of them by the State Government and by local residents. Where funding is provided by State Government, resourcing should prioritise in-sourcing (i.e. through direct employment and without outsourcing) wherever possible.
- 7.120 The State Government has a responsibility to ensure that the state has a system of local government that is efficient, effective and accountable, and that provides fairness and equity for local government employees.
- 7.121 Aboriginal shire councils and Torres Strait Island-based councils have extra-ordinary obligations to their constituents and require particular support from the State Government to meet the intent of the principles and objectives of the Social Justice for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.
- 7.122 Local governments should maintain a competent permanent workforce at all levels to ensure continuity of operation and the most efficient and effective provision of local government services.
- 7.123 Local government utilities such as water supply, sewerage, waste management and transport should not be privatised or contracted out. Local government water retail and distribution should continue to be wholly operated by local government and owned by the people.
- 7.124 Local governments must ultimately be accountable to their electors for their activities. A Labor government in Queensland will refrain from interfering in local government operations unless there is evidence of gross mismanagement, illegal activity or the council has acted outside its powers under the relevant Acts.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

Structure, accountability and operation of Local Government

- 7.125 Delivery and management of local government services such as (but not limited to) libraries, customer service, planning, local laws and accounts should not be privatised or contracted out. Local government services should continue to be delivered directly by local government employees and with a commitment to supporting the local community.
- 7.126 Any services or utilities which would otherwise ordinarily be delivered by local government but are required to be delivered by private entities should be obliged to report against the same transparency and accountability requirements as local government for the delivery of those services.
- 7.127 Local governments are, more often than not, the first to respond to natural disasters. Labor sees local governments as a key partner in emergency management.

- 7.128 Labor believes local government's important role must be recognised, supported and funded, including for clean-up and reconstruction efforts, as well as being part of discussions with the Federal Government in terms of natural disaster funding distributions and mitigation.
- 7.129 Labor will maintain the recognition of local government in the Constitution of Queensland 2001 (Qld) and guarantee the continuation of a local government system in Queensland.
- 7.130 Labor will promote and facilitate regular discussion, consultation and negotiation with local governments.
- 7.131 Labor will allow local government autonomy over matters that are the province of local government.
- 7.132 Labor will formalise regular meetings with representatives of the Local Government Association of Queensland, the Aboriginal Local Government Association of Queensland, unions of employees and relevant State Government departments.
- 7.133 Labor will implement coordinated planning models for Indigenous communities' programme funding and reporting. These plans must engage with all government agencies, as well as community organisations and councils, and include effective reporting timeframes and consultation.
- 7.134 Labor will ensure local government electoral laws are fair and equitable, that electoral boundaries are appropriate to the communities they serve, and that these boundaries are based on a 'shared community of interest'. Labor has a commitment to a ward system with single-member representation and full preferential voting where possible, and a preference for proportional representation where multi-member divisions are necessary.
- 7.135 Labor will provide for an independent review process of local government size and boundaries to ensure that existing configurations of councils are appropriate for the communities they serve.
- 7.136 Where multi-member divisions are necessary, and when the policy of proportional representation for such council elections is implemented, Labor will seek to replace by-elections by appointing through count back the failed candidate with the highest number of votes who is willing to accept the appointment. Proportional representation vacancies should also be filled via count back.
- 7.137 Labor will ensure that the wages and conditions of local government workers are fair and protected by ensuring that local government industrial relations regulation remains in the Queensland jurisdiction.
- 7.138 Labor will provide for appropriate remuneration to elected members of local councils for the time they have spent in service.
- 7.139 Labor will protect the right of Crown and statutory authority employees to nominate for local government elections.
- 7.140 Labor will legislate to ensure that public sector and local government employees who nominate for election to state or federal parliament or local government are entitled to a leave of absence to pursue their election and if it is necessary for them to resign their employment for constitutional reasons in order to seek election and they are not elected, to be reinstated without loss of continuity.

- 7.141 Labor will maintain fixed, four-year terms for local governments. Casual vacancies, except in the final year of term, should go to by-election.
- 7.142 Labor will require a Pecuniary Interest Register be maintained by all local government authorities and will extend public disclosure requirements for State Government candidates to include local government candidates. Such a register must contain the dates, amounts and sources of political donations.
- 7.143 Labor will amend legislation to ensure that councils are open and accountable, ensuring that Right to Information principles apply to all local governments including Brisbane City Council.
- 7.144 Labor prefers council ownership and council management of local government public utilities, particularly water and sewerage. Where council assets have been transferred to public corporations, Labor expects that councils should always retain responsibility through mandatory occupation of governing board positions. Councillors should occupy governing board positions commensurate with a council's level of equity in corporatized utilities.
- 7.145 Labor will work actively with employers to address disability workforce shortages, particularly in rural, regional and remotes areas, by supporting improved remuneration and conditions for disability workers, and investing in increased training and development initiatives.
- 7.146 Labor will require all tendering for council services and projects to be subject to open advertising/assessment processes. The principle of best value for money should be the prime criteria for assessment.
- 7.147 Labor will continue to support the use of council day labour in preference to the use of contractors for disaster recovery and reconstruction work. Further, Labor will support the permanent funding of such work through the Federal Natural Disaster Relief and Recovery Arrangements (NDRRA).
- 7.148 Labor will support the use of council plant and equipment in preference to the use of contractors for disaster recovery and reconstruction work where it shows value for money.

Further, Labor will support the permanent funding of such work through the Federal Natural Disaster Relief and Recovery Arrangements (NDRRA).
- 7.149 Labor will continue to advocate on behalf of Queensland communities for national Natural Disaster Relief and Recovery Arrangements funding model that maintains the current level of federal and state funding and provides a greater focus on mitigation and resilience.

Finance

- 7.150 Labor will continue to provide an adequate level of funding to assist local authorities to perform their functions, particularly in the area of capital works for water, sewerage, drainage and roadworks projects and major sporting and recreational facilities.
- 7.151 Labor will ensure local government has access to low cost loans through such instrumentalities as the Queensland Treasury Corporation.
- 7.152 Labor will provide incentives to local governments to pursue innovative and environmentally sensitive infrastructure projects.
- 7.153 Labor will assist local governments in resourcing activities related to the responsibilities that the State Government has delegated to local governments.

- 7.154 Labor will provide incentives for local governments to introduce policies and practices that facilitate a better balance for employees between work and family life.

Community Development and Participation

- 7.155 Labor will ensure local government continues to maintain responsibility for provision of key community and development services, including libraries, planning and inspection services (e.g. plumbing, building).
- 7.156 Labor will encourage local authorities to maximise community participation in local government matters through formal consultative processes.
- 7.157 Labor will encourage local authorities to offer services responsive to different cultural values and expectations.
- 7.158 Labor will support and encourage local governments to provide and maintain an appropriate public transport system.

URBAN AND REGIONAL PLANNING POLICY

LABOR BELIEFS

- 7.159 Labor believes effective urban and regional planning is critical to Queensland's liveability, sustainability and prosperity. We believe in a planning system that is:
- fair and flexible, to effectively manage the challenges of urban growth and rural decline
 - open and accountable, to ensure communities and neighbourhoods can fully participate in the planning and development decisions that affect their local areas
 - integrated and efficient, to ensure confidence and certainty of decision making
 - future focussed, with an emphasis on long-term strategies that deliver sustainable development
 - grounded in local communities, to recognise and support the central role of local government in land-use planning and decision-making.

Advancing our Cities Agenda through Inter-Governmental Collaboration Opportunities

- 7.160 Labor will play a critical role in setting and coordinating the delivery of the Queensland Government's Cities Agenda, to work towards better alignment of local, state and national priorities to influence and reflect the development of 'City Deals' between the Australian Government, Queensland Government and relevant local governments.
- 7.161 Labor will facilitate and foster genuine collaborative partnerships across all levels of government the private sector and the community, through the adoption of 'City Deals' or similar instruments, to capitalise on strategic advantages and opportunities in each city promoting new investment, economic growth and prosperity.
- 7.162 Labor will recognise the importance of our cities and regional centres to the economic and social fabric of Queensland, through a forward-looking cities agenda focussed on the integration of land use planning, innovative infrastructure financing options and productivity aimed at eliminating bottlenecks, building capacity and boosting productivity as a way to facilitate economic and jobs growth.

- 7.163 Labor recognises that if we want our cities to reach their full potential and compete with their global counterparts, then we need to invest in society by transitioning to a knowledge based economy, and ensuring liveable, sustainable and well-designed communities.
- 7.164 Labor will encourage the Australian Government to restore the Major Cities Unit and re-engage with the National Urban Policy, particularly in terms of supporting strategic trunk infrastructure investments, providing evidence based policy through “State of Australian Cities” reporting to assist makers and championing urban design excellence.

Ensuring Growth delivers Liveability, Sustainability and Prosperity

- 7.165 Labor will restore a balanced planning system that is focussed on the three core objectives of liveability, sustainability and prosperity.
- 7.166 Labor will maintain and strengthen the nexus between land-use planning and infrastructure planning, so that infrastructure and essential services are in place as communities grow.
- 7.167 Labor will ensure planning considers the full range of needs for community formation, including sufficient land supply for residential, employment, retail, educational, community facilities and open space uses.
- 7.168 Labor will ensure that high-quality urban design and place-making underpins new development, with a strong emphasis on public and active transport to support more compact and walkable communities.
- 7.169 Labor will develop and implement healthy planning principles that recognise the important link between community design and health outcomes.
- 7.170 Labor will establish planning principles for including pedestrian shade structures in new commercial and public buildings and major commercial and public building refurbishments.
- 7.171 Labor will establish appropriate protections for sites with national, state or local heritage values.

Supporting Integrated and Strategic Planning

- 7.172 Labor will deliver for each region of Queensland new statutory regional plans that effectively integrate land-use planning and infrastructure planning.
- 7.173 Labor will publish regular reports, supported by measurable data, on the progress of implementing each regional plan, as well as on their social, economic and environmental impacts and benefits.
- 7.174 Labor will establish genuinely consultative and collaborative decision-making structures that ensure local government and local communities can participate effectively in the process of regional planning.
- 7.175 Labor will work with local government to ensure that planning schemes appropriately respond to the risks posed by natural disasters and climate change as well as support communities to transition to a low carbon economy.
- 7.176 Labor will genuinely integrate the state’s referral agency jurisdiction through a reformed single assessment agency function.

- 7.177 Labor will appropriately consider local government planning strategies for the use of Crown land.
- 7.178 Labor will ensure that all applications for resource developments are subject to a social impact assessment process to ensure that such developments proceed in a socially responsible and sustainable manner.
- 7.179 Labor believes that public scrutiny of, and the right to object to, resource and urban development proposals is an important part of an open, transparent and accountable democracy. Labor will maintain statutory notification rights and public objection rights for resource and urban development proposals.
- 7.180 Labor will implement administrative arrangements that ensure the Department of Infrastructure and Planning is the principal planning agency of government.

Delivering Effective Urban Growth Management for South-East Queensland

- 7.181 Labor will deliver a planning approach based on “smart growth” principles, including focussing development around activity centres, employment corridors, and public transport hubs.
- 7.182 Labor will make strategic government land available for transit-oriented development in areas near major rail and busway stations, where this does not compromise future corridor needs.
- 7.183 Labor will continue to refocus Economic Development Queensland with a strategic government land organisation that works to address the challenges of housing supply, housing affordability and housing choice.
- 7.184 Labor will protect and enhance South-East Queensland’s green space through retaining a statutory urban footprint.
- 7.185 Labor will prioritise development in areas serviced by existing public transport, while ensuring that new development is in appropriate locations that respond to community expectations.

Providing Better Planning for Regional and Rural Queensland

- 7.186 Labor will support rural and regional local councils to undertake planning that responds to the diverse needs of their local communities.
- 7.187 Labor will recognise the geographic decentralisation of Queensland and support planning for the further regionalisation of government services and agencies.
- 7.188 Labor will support rural, regional and peri-urban councils to examine strategic regional growth issues, including lot sizes, land fragmentation, rural–urban interface issues and the preservation of strategic and good quality agricultural land.

Ensuring Transparent and Accountable Development Assessment

- 7.189 Labor will review the Planning Act 2016 (Qld) to further embed the best practice model developed by the Development Assessment Forum.
- 7.190 Labor will expand the use of online tools that support community understanding of planning and development assessment, including integrated mapping, online lodgements, and new engagement tools.

- 7.191 Labor will explore opportunities for using new technologies in assessing development proposals, including use of 3D tools.
- 7.192 Labor will maintain and defend the “own costs” jurisdiction of the Planning and Environment Court and ensure submitter appeal rights.
- 7.193 Labor will maintain and defend adequate funding for independent, community-based planning advice and advocacy organisations, such as the Environmental Defender’s Office.
- 7.194 Labor believes that to promote transparency in planning and for the community to fully participate in the planning process, information about council decisions and conditions must be freely and readily available, with the exception of genuine financial and commercial in confidence data.
- 7.195 Labor supports councils to negotiate infrastructure agreements that implement or further planning goals already outlined in local and city plans. Labor believes when infrastructure agreements are finalised these agreements should immediately be publicly accessible and freely available to the community.
- 7.196 Labor supports councils to place conditions on developments that ensure they meet community expectations and comply with local and city plans. Labor believes all documentation submitted by developers in response to a condition of development should be publicly listed in a timely way and be freely available and accessible to the community.
- 7.197 Labor believes local and city plans should provide local residents and developers with confidence about how cities, suburbs and neighbourhoods may grow and what types of developments will be approved in the future. Labor in Council will ensure outcomes and criteria used in plans are unambiguous so the community and developers can have confidence in what is and what is not acceptable outcomes for development.

Chapter 8: Caring and Secure Communities

Queensland Labor recognises multiple dimensions that contribute to creating and maintaining caring and secure communities. These include Arts and Culture, Democratic Institutions, Law, Justice and Community Safety, Violence Against Women, Child Protection, Community and Disability Services, needs associated with age for Older and Young Queenslanders, and Sport and Recreation.

OUR DEMOCRATIC INSTITUTIONS

LABOR VALUES

- 8.1 Labor believes in a Queensland that is a free, democratic society, built upon the principles of Westminster Responsible Government and respect for the separation of powers.
- 8.2 Labor believes that Queenslanders are entitled to have a government that is accountable and as open as possible. Queenslanders deserve a government they can trust.
- 8.3 Queensland's system of government, constitution and our laws must reflect the dignity and fundamental rights of citizens.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.4 Labor believes parliaments must derive their membership through a fair, democratic and transparent electoral system based on the principle of equal universal adult suffrage. Labor is committed to an electoral system consisting of:
 - compulsory enrolment and voting for all Australian citizens of adult age
 - a secret ballot
 - the principle of "one vote, one value", with electoral boundaries regularly redistributed to ensure equal representation within areas determined by geography, community and population
 - an independent electoral commission to conduct redistributions and elections
 - public funding of election campaigns and full disclosure of political donations
 - laws providing that public service and local government employees, and employees of government-owned corporations and boards who contest elections be automatically entitled to unpaid leave and, if unsuccessful, will not be disadvantaged as a result of their candidacy.
- 8.5 Labor believes parliaments, including parliamentary bodies such as committees, should have, and be accepting of, a diversity of membership, reflecting the diversity of our community - for example women, ethnic minorities, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning people, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, people with disabilities, and people living in regional, rural and remote communities.
- 8.6 Labor believes parliaments, including parliamentary bodies such as committees, should have, and be accepting of, a diversity of membership, reflecting the diversity of our community – for example women, ethnic minorities, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, and people with disabilities.
- 8.7 Labor believes in a transition to an Australian Republic, with an Australian Head of State, who can fully represent our traditions, values and aspirations as a nation.

Integrity in Government

- 8.8 Labor believes that citizens have a Right to Information on the decisions and procedures of government and a right to access and correct where necessary information that government holds about them. Labor will ensure that costs for citizens to access information are not a barrier to Right to Information applications.
- 8.9 Labor believes in independent oversight of government actions and will support statutory office holders such as the Auditor-General, the anti-corruption watchdog and the Ombudsman.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.10 Labor will implement parliamentary processes that provide for the proper scrutiny and accountability of the executive and the public service. Labor will ensure that parliament, through estimates hearings and a bipartisan parliamentary committee system, is provided the opportunity to properly scrutinise executive government.
- 8.11 Labor will ensure that the appointments to the anti-corruption watchdog are made with bipartisan support from the parliamentary committee responsible for its oversight.
- 8.12 Labor will ensure the anti-corruption watchdog is properly resourced and focused on preventing and investigating major crime and corruption, major criminal activity and misconduct.
- 8.13 Labor recognises the importance of women in government, including in parliamentary committees, and will retain a Minister for Women, who is a woman.
- 8.14 Labor will maintain a Minister for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Policy Partnerships, with a dedicated Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander-identified senior ministerial advisory position.
- 8.15 Labor will develop, implement, and monitor ways to improve the capacity of people living in regional, rural and remote communities to be represented in Cabinet and portfolio representation and in Ministerial staff complements.
- 8.16 Labor will review our Queensland's electoral system to ensure elections are free, fair and transparent and provide the greatest opportunity to have their say. Labor will consult the Queensland community on measures to provide greater consistency on voting systems and parliamentary terms between states and with the Commonwealth, including compulsory preferential voting and four-year fixed terms.
- 8.17 Labor believes citizens must have confidence that elected representatives are acting with integrity and impartiality in government decision-making processes. Labor will build on our proud record of reform that has seen a lower disclosure threshold, banning of foreign donations and real-time donations by further limiting donations and campaign expenditure.
- 8.18 Labor will work with the Federal Government to investigate protocols and mechanisms for eligible individuals who turn 18 years of age to be automatically added to the Federal and State electoral roll.
- 8.19 Labor will ensure that its agencies and the Electoral Commission Queensland to work together more effectively in order to maximise 'direct enrolment' through information supplied to Queensland Government agencies.
- 8.20 Labor will ensure that enrolment up to and on the day of the election is permitted.

- 8.21 Labor will ensure that compulsory preferential voting for local government elections in Queensland be introduced.

LAW

LABOR VALUES

- 8.22 Labor believes that all citizens, regardless of their background, circumstances or beliefs, have the right to equal and fair treatment before the law.
- 8.23 Labor is committed to a strong and independent legal system that respects and promotes the following principles:
- the rule of law including the right to be treated equally before the law and the rights to due process and a fair trial
 - an independent, open and accessible judicial system
 - the right to liberty and security
 - freedom of thought, conscience and liberty
 - freedom of speech and expression subject to reasonable restrictions required to protect the reputation of others or to protect national security, public order, public health or public morality
 - freedom of association
 - the right to protection from unlawful discrimination and harassment including on the grounds of sex, gender, gender identity, intersex status, sexual orientation, race, religion, age, disability, or status as a victim of family violence.
- 8.24 Labor believes that citizens have a right of access to justice, and is committed to ensuring citizens obtain that right through a competitive and efficient legal profession and a modern, open system of courts and tribunals.
- 8.25 Labor believes in the fundamental human rights, dignity and worth of the human person.
- 8.26 Labor recognises the importance of respectful and confidential communication and consultation between the government, the legal profession and the judiciary regarding judicial appointments and the functioning of the judiciary.

LABOR BELIEFS

Access to Justice

- 8.27 Labor believes that all Queenslanders have a right to access justice before Queensland's courts and tribunals. Labor believes that a properly funded Legal Aid and network of Community Legal Centres is crucial to removing barriers to accessing justice.
- 8.28 Labor believes that women, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, culturally and linguistically diverse communities, people with a disability, people living in regional, rural and remote communities, and the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning community, need special support to seek access to justice. Labor will continue to fund legal and justice services and interpretation services for these communities.

The Rights of the Terminally Ill

- 8.29 Labor believes that voluntary euthanasia and assisted dying, in addition to comprehensive palliative care options, should be legally available as an option for a person of sound mind suffering from a terminal illness that has diminished their quality of life to the extent that the person requests termination of their life. Labor supports a conscience vote on the question of voluntary euthanasia and assisted dying consistent with the 1996 decision of the National Executive.

The Right to Reproductive Autonomy

- 8.30 Labor believes that all people should be free to make their own reproductive and sexual health choices for their own bodies.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.31 Labor will promote access to justice for Queenslanders. Labor will continue to modernise our court system and ensure that barriers to justice for Queenslanders are removed.
- 8.32 Labor will ensure that Queenslanders continue to have access to a free and fair trial from an independent judiciary. Labor will respect the separation of powers and the judiciary as an independent arm of government.
- 8.33 Labor will ask the Queensland Law Reform Commission, to conduct a review of jury selection in Queensland, to ensure that Queenslanders are receiving a fair trial, by a jury that is reflective of our Queensland community.
- 8.34 Labor will investigate introducing a specific public holiday in Queensland to recognise the culture, contribution and struggle of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders.
- 8.35 Labor will strengthen anti-discrimination legislation, particularly in the areas of employment, family violence education, housing, public accommodation, public entertainment and recreation, state taxation, property rights, and fiscal or financial benefits.
- 8.36 Labor will review the Anti-Discrimination Act 1991 (Qld) and consider extending the provisions relating to vilification to include other attributes, including sex.
- 8.37 Labor will review the timeframe limitations on reporting sexual harassment within Queensland's anti-discrimination statutory framework, with a view to investigating whether these time-frames should be expanded.
- 8.38 Labor will review the Anti-Discrimination Act 1991 (QLD) to determine whether the Act and/or other legislation adequately protect lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning Queenslanders from discrimination, including that lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning workers or volunteers are not prevented from disclosing their identity or family status for fear of dismissal, discrimination, disciplinary action or any other ill treatment.
- 8.39 In consultation with the Queensland Government's LGBTIQ Roundtable, Labor will implement any measures necessary as recommended in the review currently underway so as to allow the Health Ombudsman to take action against any individuals or organisations purporting to provide 'gay conversion therapy'.
- 8.40 Labor will ensure uniformity of age across laws relating to the age of consent for lawful sexual activity.
- 8.41 Labor will review Queensland law to enable class actions and to facilitate access to, and appearances by, community groups in Queensland courts.

8.42 Labor supports the removal of sex work from Chapter 22 of the Criminal Code Act 1899 (Qld), from the Police Powers and Responsibilities Act 2000 (Qld) and the repeal of the Prostitution Act 1999 (Qld).

Labor will refer the development of an appropriate regulatory framework for a decriminalised sex work industry to the independent Queensland Law Reform Commission within the current term of Parliament.

8.43 Labor will provide for the protection of residential tenants and manufactured home park residents through the funding of the Tenancy Advocacy and Advice Services.

8.44 To ensure that all couples who have a mutual commitment to a shared life do not suffer discrimination because they are not married. Labor in government will develop relationship registration legislation that will include the opportunity for couples who have a mutual commitment to a shared life to have that relationship registered and certified. This legislation will be based on a relationship recognition scheme.

8.45 Labor will actively pursue the decriminalisation of termination of pregnancy in Queensland and will amend the law so that all legal distinctions between termination of pregnancy and other medical procedures are abolished by repealing sections 224, 225 and 226 of the Criminal Code 1899 within the current term of government.

Labor will be informed by the recommendations of the Queensland Law Reform Commission on the decriminalisation of termination of pregnancy.

8.46 Labor will establish safe access zones around premises at which reproductive health services, including terminations, are provided to protect the safety, well-being, privacy and dignity of those accessing services, and those who access those premises in the course of their employment.

8.47 Labor will reinstate the rights of Queensland workers to seek common law damages for work-related injuries.

8.48 Labor will investigate legislative pathways that would outlaw or render ineffective non-disclosure and confidentiality clauses in employment contracts, enterprise and certified agreements, policies and other industrial instruments (in particular, dispute resolution policies and procedures) to the extent that they cannot be used to silence victims of sexual harassment or similar behaviour in the workplace.

8.49 Labor will support justice reinvestment strategies for youth and adult offenders, to reduce correctional and youth detention centre spending, by reinvesting funds into evidence-based initiatives that reduce crime and promote community safety.

8.50 Labor in government will continue to restore prison programs aimed at rehabilitating prisoners and reducing recidivism, while continuing to explore and develop new and expanded opportunities.

8.51 Labor believes that all prisons in Queensland should have inmate to prisoner officer ratio set by Queensland Corrective Services. Prison officer and inmate safety will be the focus when setting such ratios

8.52 Labor will ensure that the Criminal Code makes it a criminal offence to intentionally distribute an intimate image of another person without that person's consent, and any threat to do so, a criminal offence. Labor will advocate to all other Australian jurisdictions to enact similar or parallel legislation.

- 8.53 Labor will repeal legislation which fetters judicial discretion by imposing mandatory minimum sentences for criminal offences.
- 8.54 Labor will introduce a Human Rights Act for Queensland based on the Victorian Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Vic).
- 8.55 Labor commits to reforming the processes of the State Government, including the issuing and modifying of identity documents, certificates and any other documents, so that these processes and documents are inclusive of, and cater for, the needs of sex and gender diverse people. This reform will include:
- ensuring no “forced divorce” of persons who wish to change their legally recognised gender
 - simplifying the process for change of gender signifiers
 - allowing neutral or unspecified signifiers
 - actively protecting the rights and autonomy of intersex persons from birth
 - reviewing any other legislation that adversely impacts the sex and gender diverse community.
- 8.56 Labor commits to reforming the processes of the State Government by July 2019, including the issuing and modifying of identity documents, certificates and other documents, so that these processes and documents are inclusive of, and cater for, the needs of the sex and gender diverse people.
- 8.57 Labor introduced a Multicultural Recognition Act 2016 (Qld) which established a Multicultural Queensland Charter and a Multicultural Queensland Advisory Council.
- 8.58 Labor will pursue the adoption of “lemon laws” in Queensland to resolve disputes over faulty new motor vehicles. These should be consistent with other Australian laws.
- 8.59 Labor will introduce legislation for voluntary assisted dying for adults who are terminally ill, following the model of the Dying With Dignity/Oregon Model, and the Voluntary Assisted Dying legislation in Victoria. Labor's legislation will be preceded by a parliamentary inquiry.
- 8.60 Labor will legislate on the rights of donor conceived individuals:
- for the right to identify information on their donor, regardless on when they were born
 - for the retention of information on donor conception in a government registry, to which all clinics must supply donor conception information
 - for a mechanism for accessing identifying information on their donor and birth information, including medical history of donor siblings
 - to allow donor conceived individuals to request contact with donors and donor siblings supported by counselling services
 - to protect the rights of donors and donor siblings by allowing them to veto contact.
- 8.61 Labor will prioritise funding for Legal Aid and Community Legal Centres to remove barriers to accessing justice.
- 8.62 Labor will investigate and implement safeguards, legislative or otherwise, to prevent and protect against elder abuse in all its forms.

JUSTICE AND COMMUNITY SAFETY

LABOR VALUES

- 8.63 Labor believes that crime requires appropriate penalties and responses. Labor is also committed to building a safe community that requires government to address the causes of crime and the social factors that underlie them.
- 8.64 Labor recognises the important role the police, courts and correctional centres play in reducing crime. Labor also recognises that poverty, inequality of opportunity and access to resources, unemployment and mental health also impact significantly on the level of crime in our communities. Labor is committed to exploring and implementing innovative measures to reduce crime.
- 8.65 Labor believes that in a democratic society, it is necessary that the Police Service be competent, effective, non-partisan and apolitical. The Police Service must have the respect of the community, and work with the community to make communities safer.
- 8.66 Labor believes that the purpose of an emergency services system is the protection of life, property and the environment. Labor also believes that emergency services must be able to respond to emergencies, with maximum speed and effectiveness, to preserve life and property and the environment, aid recovery from disasters and work towards disaster mitigation.
- 8.67 All Queenslanders should have access to public Ambulance Services regardless of location and free of cost.
- 8.68 Appreciating the value of public Ambulance Services and the difficulties staff face in their work, Labor recognises the need to improve work safety for these workers. This includes resourcing to adequately provide safe rest pauses and systems and technology being implemented to ensure personal safety while conducting their duties.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.69 Labor supports introducing legislative systemic police and court diversionary practices to enable vulnerable people to avoid the operation of the criminal justice system for minor public order offences. Labor believes diversionary strategies are a cheaper and more effective option than incarceration for dealing with minor personal drug misuse and minor related offences.
- 8.70 Labor believes that police should be provided with ongoing support for, and adequate resources to access, professional development, including training and professional supervision, in dealing with domestic and family violence and child abuse and vulnerable persons.
- 8.71 Labor acknowledges the over-representation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples in the law and justice system as both offenders and victims of crime. Labor is committed to reducing the over-representation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples in the criminal justice system.
- 8.72 Labor supports a holistic approach to addressing the socio-economic disadvantage and geographic circumstances that lead to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples entering the law and justice system.
- 8.73 Labor recognises that more collaborative responses are required to reduce the over-representation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples in the criminal justice system and supports working in partnership with community-led organisations in closing the justice gap.

- 8.74 Labor believes in the value of programs of rehabilitation for offenders.
- 8.75 Labor acknowledges the vital work of emergency services including the:
- Queensland Ambulance Service;
 - Queensland Fire and Emergency Service, including the agencies of the Queensland Fire and Rescue Service, State Emergency Service, Aviation Services Volunteer Marine Rescue organisations, Coast Guard and Rural Fire Brigade; and
 - Queensland Police Service.
- 8.76 Labor believes that Queenslanders are best protected from natural disaster by the continued integration of emergency services, with coordinated emergency protocols and disaster management plans, to ensure an effective and timely response to emergencies and disasters.
- 8.77 Labor recognises the effects of climate change on the fire season and that natural disasters such as bushfires and floods are likely to increase in severity into the future. Labor acknowledges that the Queensland Fire and Emergency Service professional firefighting workforce will need to grow to meet community demand in the future.
- 8.78 Labor acknowledges the community spirit and dedication of Queensland’s highly motivated volunteer emergency service workers. Labor will continue to ensure that our volunteers are given maximum flexibility and adequate equipment and resources to make their contribution.
- 8.79 Labor affirms the importance of regulated requirements of safe crewing on the fire ground, which includes the principle of two-in two-out.
- 8.80 Queensland Labor supports the establishment of state and federal registration boards for Professional Firefighters.

Corrective Services

- 8.81 Labor believes that Corrective Services are an essential component of Queensland’s criminal justice system and values their contribution to crime prevention.
- 8.82 Labor believes that correctional facilities currently operated by the Queensland Government should remain under the operation of the Queensland Government.
- 8.83 Labor believes Queensland’s Corrective Services system should provide appropriate responses and support for people in this system who suffer from disability, mental health issues, a trauma history, acquired brain injury and dementia.
- 8.84 Labor will investigate the feasibility of expanding the operation of Restorative Justice Mediation to all courthouses throughout Queensland or facilitating the referral of matters that are eligible for Restorative Justice Mediation to courthouses that facilitate such mediation.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.85 Labor will work with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities to develop and update proposals to reduce the problems of the overrepresentation of young Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples within the Juvenile Justice System. Labor will continue to engage with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, while exploring and developing new and expanded opportunities to reduce the over representation of Indigenous Australians in our prison system.

- 8.86 Labor will re-establish the Queensland Sentencing Advisory Council to ensure that the views of a wide cross-section of legal stakeholders and victims of crime are represented in our justice system.
- 8.87 Labor is committed to reinstating a broad range of options when it comes to youth sentencing with a focus on rehabilitation within the community.
- 8.88 Labor is committed to reinstating youth and adult justice conferencing and mediation to allow victims of crime input into the justice system and provide perpetrators an opportunity to make appropriate recompense for their offences.
- 8.89 Labor will reinstate the operation of the Special Circumstances Court with a view to extending its operation throughout Queensland, including rural and remote areas where appropriate, for people suffering from cognitive disability, intellectual impairment, mental health issues, acquired brain injury and dementia.
- 8.90 Labor will reinstate the operation of drug courts as an effective diversionary strategy for dealing with drug misuse and minor related offences as an alternative to the criminal justice system.
- 8.91 Labor will review the drug diversion program and its effectiveness with a view to expanding both eligibility and accessibility to all Queenslanders, noting the importance of the program to communities across the state, particularly in regional, rural, and remote areas.
- 8.92 Labor acknowledges that illicit drug use is essentially a health and social issue. Labor shall therefore initiative an extensive process of public consultation to explore the effectiveness of selective diversionary programs (e.g. Queensland Drug Court) in relation to low-level personal drug use and possession as an additional strategy to reduce the adverse and harmful effects of drugs.
- 8.93 Labor will review the law relating to defences for murder to ensure that it adequately takes account of the position of a person who has suffered a history of domestic and family violence.
- 8.94 Labor will ensure that the option of allowing an accused in criminal cases to sit at the bar table, removing the stigma of the dock.
- 8.95 Labor will review laws relating to sexual offences to ensure proceedings are, wherever possible, less traumatic for the victim.
- 8.96 Labor will establish, support, and effectively resource diversionary centres whose focus will be on primary intervention and the assessment of the health and well-being of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples for subsequent referral.
- 8.97 Labor will in the first instance support, operate and effectively resource Murri Courts with the aim of having Murri Courts in all Magistrates Courts throughout Queensland. This will include the involvement of statutory and non-statutory Community Justice Groups, Elders and victims of crime.

Where the introduction of a Murri Court is not considered possible, a cost-benefit analysis will be conducted to determine any financial impacts, verses the societal and financial impacts of the disproportionate levels of indigenous incarceration.

Where there is no permanent Magistrates Court, Labor will investigate an effective and efficient system for a rotating Murri Court in conjunction with the rotating roster of Magistrates Courts. Where this is not possible, Labor will ensure that matters will be referred to the nearest possible Murri Court noting cultural differences.

- 8.98 Labor will continue to ensure that Probation and Parole Service and Queensland Corrective Service officers who work with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and communities are provided cultural awareness training.
- 8.99 The Probation and Parole Service will offer a broad range of culturally responsive early interventions, diversionary, and rehabilitation programs designed specifically to meet the diverse needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.
- 8.100 Labor will continue to increase the numerical strength of the Queensland Police Service, and the proportion of that strength assigned to operational duties, classifications, sections and equipment required to establish a competent, effective law enforcement operation.
- 8.101 Labor will ensure that functions that do not require a Police Officer's training and experience are undertaken by civilians.
- 8.102 Labor will continue to promote a Police Service that reflects the diversity of the broader community of Queensland.
- 8.103 Labor will continue the Indigenous Cadetship Program and the Culturally and Linguistically Diverse Program and expand programs that provide a pathway for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples as well as culturally, ethnically and linguistically diverse peoples into the Queensland Police Service.
- 8.104 Labor sees emergency services expenditure as an investment in the lives and the quality of life of Queenslanders. Labor will focus on protecting all Queensland communities, as far as possible, from the effects of natural and man-made disasters and emergencies. In achieving this, expenditure will continue to be focused on:
- front line service delivery;
 - training and development for all personnel including volunteers; and
 - effectively coordinated systems, policies and procedures.
- 8.105 Labor will continue to advance the professionalism of emergency services personnel by ensuring their proper recognition, job satisfaction, incentives and career paths.
- 8.106 Labor in government will continue to increase the numerical strength of Queensland Ambulance Services, and the proportion of that strength assigned to operational duties, classifications, sections and equipment required to establish a competent, effective ambulance service operation.
- 8.107 Labor will develop an appropriate Resourcing Matrix to ensure the Queensland Ambulance Service has the ability to respond to community demand for ambulance services without compromising staff safety.
- 8.108 Labor in government will develop and enhance ambulance operations through the implementation of Low Acuity Response, Specialised Retrieval Units (Bariatric, Paediatric, Neonatal) and alternate referral pathways for patients, to reduce the burden on hospital emergency departments.
- 8.109 Labor acknowledges the critical role that public officers (including first responders), health practitioners and assisting staff play in ensuring the safety of all Queenslanders. Labor in government will, through legislation, policy, regulation and education campaigns, aim to prevent the assault of public officers (including first responders), health practitioners and assisting staff noting that these professions are significantly vulnerable to violence.

- 8.110 Labor, in consultation with Queensland Fire and Emergency Services and relevant unions, will develop strategies to ensure Queensland Fire and Emergency Services continues to have the capacity to respond to community demand effectively into the future, without compromising staff safety.
- 8.111 Labor commits to continuing the modernisation of the organisational structure of the Queensland Fire and Emergency Services during the next term of government.
- 8.112 Labor will ensure that victims of crime are properly supported, through timely and appropriate responses to help victims of crime rebuild their lives.
- 8.113 Labor will ensure that the Queensland Police Service provides appropriate special assistance to people from vulnerable backgrounds such as women, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, people from non-English speaking backgrounds and people with cognitive disability, intellectual disability, acquired brain injury, dementia or mental illness.
- 8.114 Labor recognises the right of all to access public space and believes police should not have a general power to move on people from a public space. Labor will ensure an independent review of the move-on power legislation, consulting widely with relevant community stakeholders.

Labor will establish a public register of move-on directions and reasons, without identifying individuals, and will ensure adequate appeal mechanisms exist to challenge these directions.
- 8.115 Labor will continue to roll-out body-worn cameras to improve to improve evidence collection and accountability for police officers.
- 8.116 Labor believes crime prevention requires strong community connections. Labor will encourage the community to work with police in both detection and prevention of crime, including Community Policing Boards, Neighbourhood Watch and Police Community Consultative Committees.

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

LABOR VALUES

- 8.117 Labor is committed to eradicating all forms of violence against women.
- 8.118 Labor acknowledges domestic and sexual violence, including intimate partner violence, is a whole of society issue that affects all people but, are overwhelmingly forms of violence that affect women and are reinforced by cultural attitudes and gendered bias.
- 8.119 Labor understands that violence against women can be perpetrated across a range of platforms, and Labor must adapt to legislate against new and emerging forms of abuse, such as technology facilitated abuse, or revenge porn.
- 8.120 Labor understands that persons who are subjected to sexual assault or assault should have access to appropriate support services and a criminal justice system that supports that person's lived experiences.
- 8.121 Labor understands that reducing violence against women is contingent on increasing women's representation throughout all areas of our society.
- 8.122 Labor in government will create a Sexuality and Gender Commissioner.

- 8.123 Labor in government will promote a portfolio of equality within the Queensland Cabinet.
- 8.124 Labor understands that addressing violence against women must be undertaken through an integrated and multi-sector approach and undertaken in a culturally appropriate manner that is respectful and takes into account the wishes of, and best practices for, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and Culturally and Linguistically Diverse Queenslanders.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.125 Labor believes approaches to domestic and family violence must take into account the gendered nature of this violence, and work at addressing violence against women as a whole.
- 8.126 Labor believes that all children have the right to grow up without seeing or experiencing domestic and family violence.
- 8.127 Labor believes that the prevention of violence against women must be addressed through a comprehensive action plan that is collaborative, and engages with stakeholders in the wider community.
- 8.128 Labor believes that strategies developed to prevent domestic and family violence must be informed by the community, as well as a range of sectors that are impacted by domestic and family violence, including the health, education, judicial and housing sectors.
- 8.129 Labor believes that all victims and survivors should be able to access paid leave through their workplaces, when dealing with matters arising from, or as a result of, domestic and family violence.
- 8.130 Labor believes that the Queensland Criminal Code should provide a legal framework that defines consent, incorporating positive consent.

Labor believes that the defence of 'mistaken belief' should reviewed with respect to criminal charges that involve sexual assault.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.131 Labor will work with all sectors of the Queensland community to implement the Domestic and Family Violence Prevention Strategy, a targeted and state-wide strategy with a holistic approach to the causes and effects of domestic and family violence at state, regional and local community levels.
- 8.132 Labor will provide a coordinated network of counselling and support services to assist victims of domestic and family violence, including children, ensuring adequate accessibility of services in rural and regional locations.
- 8.133 Labor believes that Queenslanders should be protected from all types of violence, including from violence perpetrated in non-domestic situations, including, but not limited to, bullying, harassment and stalking through both physical and electronic means, by persons, including, but not limited to, peers, neighbours, work colleagues, and other persons who are not in a domestic relationship with them.
- 8.134 Labor will prioritise the provision of both emergency and long-term accommodation for victims of family violence, with specific regard for need in the regions.

- 8.135 Labor will continue to roll out specialist domestic and family violence courts across Queensland as part of our domestic and family violence reforms.
- 8.136 Labor will continue to fund legal assistance to victims of domestic and family violence and sexual violence, primarily through adequately funding and resourcing Legal Aid Queensland and community legal centres.
- 8.137 Labor will ensure that officers and staff of the Queensland Police Service are adequately trained and educated to appropriately and effectively deal with domestic and family violence and sexual violence matters.
- 8.138 Labor will refer, as a matter of priority, the issue of consent, positive consent and the use of defences such as ‘mistaken belief’ to criminal charges of sexual assault and rape to the Queensland Law Reform Commission for recommendations on legislative changes to the Queensland Criminal Code.
- 8.139 Labor will ensure that programs are available to support victims of domestic and family violence, and to address perpetrators’ behaviours, within the corrective services system.
- 8.140 Labor will ensure that programs are available to support all victims of domestic and family violence, including Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander family violence legal services that are culturally appropriate and responsive to need.
- 8.141 Labor will require state schools to implement the Queensland Respectful Relationships program within their classrooms and actively encourage independent and Catholic schools to do the same.
- 8.142 Labor will engage with existing domestic and family violence services to ensure they are conscious of the needs of marginalised groups who may access their services, such as women with a disability, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women, culturally and linguistically diverse women and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning people and ensure there is adequate funding for such services.
- 8.143 Labor will ensure a range of resources and services are available to address the causes of domestic and family violence, including:
- counselling and behavioural change programs for perpetrators in order to prevent and respond to domestic and family violence
 - community education programs focussed on preventing domestic and family violence and changing community attitudes towards domestic and family violence
 - training for professionals (such as nurses and social workers and legal practitioners), including all frontline workers, to help them recognise signs of violence and appropriately and effectively deal with domestic and family violence matters
 - training for workplaces to build understanding of domestic and family violence, and violence against women, and provide appropriate support.
- 8.144 Labor will fund Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander domestic and family violence services that are culturally appropriate and responsive to the needs of victims and survivors of violence who are Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. Labor will work in partnership with the Federal Government to improve access to culturally appropriate services in regions where Indigenous specific services for victims and survivors of violence are currently absent.

CHILD PROTECTION

LABOR VALUES

- 8.145 Labor recognises that the best way to protect children is to minimise child abuse and neglect in the first place. To do this, we need to build capacity and strength in our families and communities across Queensland, through high quality universal education, health and social services.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.146 All children have a right to grow up in an environment free from neglect and abuse. Children's best interests are paramount in all decisions affecting them.
- 8.147 Children and their families have a right to participate in decisions affecting them.
- 8.148 The safety and well-being of children is primarily the responsibility of their families, who should be supported by their communities and governments.
- 8.149 Children's rights must always be upheld by systems and institutions.
- 8.150 Policies and interventions must be evidence-based.
- 8.151 The disadvantage of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples is best addressed by a collaborative approach that incorporates holistic and culturally sensitive responses that are informed by solutions led by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and community-identified solutions.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.152 Labor will develop an accessible, inclusive integrated network of early intervention and prevention services available to all Queensland families to reduce the incidence of child abuse and neglect.
- 8.153 Labor will provide adequately resourced, comprehensive support in the transition to independent living for young people leaving care.

Where residential care services are assessed as appropriate for children who have been harmed and/or are at risk of harm, Labor supports the use of, and will adequately resource, public and not-for-profit organisations to provide this service.

- 8.154 Labor will establish the mandatory conditions for organisations to have child-safe environments and robust accountability frameworks for responding to allegations.
- 8.155 Labor will ensure that shopping centre Santas and their helpers will be required to obtain a Blue Card (Working with Children Card) prior to working with children, in line with other categories of the workforce.
- 8.156 Labor supports the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse and in government will work towards implementing the Commission's recommendations to ensure zero tolerance of child sexual abuse and support for victims of child sexual abuse.
- 8.157 Labor will work towards a significant reduction in the removal of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children from their families and communities; and institute policies and practices which support the care of these children within their families and communities in partnership with community-led organisations.

- 8.158 Labor will respond legislatively to the recommendations of the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sex Abuse.
- 8.159 Labor will identify and support independent early intervention programs aimed at supporting children at risk and their families, with a view to keeping children out of the justice system, and will work collaboratively with the Department of Child Safety where necessary.

PEOPLE WITH DISABILITY

LABOR VALUES

- 8.160 Labor acknowledges the broad spectrum of disability that can be either permanent or temporary: including, physical and intellectual disability as well as mental health issues.
- 8.161 Labor is committed to supporting and valuing carers and support workers.
- 8.162 Labor is committed to building an equal and equitable society that is free from discrimination, poverty and prejudice, by taking action to ensure the structures that promote these features are eradicated.
- 8.163 Labor is committed to ensuring that there are appropriate safeguards to protect people with disability from violence in care homes, institutions and in the broader community.
- 8.164 Labor is committed to leading the way for an all abilities Queensland by recognising that every aspect of community life in Queensland can welcome and include people with disability.
- 8.165 Labor values an inclusive and flexible society because not only does this benefit people with disability, but society as a whole.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.166 The majority of informal care is provided by family members and that these carers should be supported in that role.
- 8.167 All people with a disability have the same rights to health, work, adequate housing, and social participation as the rest of the community.
- 8.168 Labor is committed to the priorities of the National Disability Strategy to drive improvements across mainstream and disability systems with the goal of a more inclusive society. Labor will always fight for a strong, fully funded National Disability Insurance Scheme.
- 8.169 Labor is committed to strong community care services for those people not eligible for the National Disability Insurance Scheme, to continue to have access to necessary services and supports.
- 8.170 Everyone should be able to have the same educational and employment opportunities, as such information needs to be accessible and available in multiple formats.
- 8.171 People of all abilities deserve strong rewarding relationships at work, recreationally, and at home. As such we believe that places, spaces and events should be accessible to all.

- 8.172 People with disability have the right to a safe living and working environment.
- 8.173 Social policy must not only address societal inequalities but must also be a vehicle for the empowerment of individuals and communities.
- 8.174 People with disability have a vital role in providing leadership in community, government and business sectors.
- 8.175 Labor recognises the mutually beneficial relationship between people with disability, unions and the wider labour movement.
- 8.176 Family members should be supported in order to provide adequate care for their loved ones within their communities.
- 8.177 All people with disability should have equitable access to health, housing, transport and social participation.
- 8.178 Labor is committed to the priorities of the National Disability Strategy to drive improvements across mainstream and disability systems with the goal of a more inclusive society.
- 8.179 Labor will always fight for a strong, fully funded National Disability Insurance Scheme.
- 8.180 Labor is committed to strong Community Care services for those people not eligible for the National Disability Insurance Scheme to continue to have access to necessary services and supports.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.181 Labor will pursue a smooth transition to the National Disability Insurance Scheme.
- 8.182 Labor strongly supports the vital work performed by all staff in the community and disability sector and will address the capacity, skill and remuneration issues affecting the disability workforce, including those who receive the Carers Pension and/or Allowance, due to the huge expansion of the sector under the National Disability Insurance Scheme.
- 8.183 Ongoing workforce attraction and retention is necessary to ensure quality care and outcomes for people living with a disability.
- 8.184 Labor will work with disability services workers and their unions, service providers and stakeholders to develop and implement a disability sector workforce strategy to improve sector capacity and maintain and enhance quality standards.
- 8.185 Labor will work actively with employers to address disability workforce shortages, particularly in rural, regional and remotes areas, by supporting improved remuneration and conditions for disability workers, and investing in increased training and development initiatives.
- 8.186 Labor strongly supports the vital work performed by all staff in the community and disability sector and will address the capacity, skill and remuneration issues affecting the disability workforce, including those who receive the Carer's Pension and/or allowance, due to the huge expansion of the sector under the National Disability Insurance Scheme.
- 8.187 Ongoing workforce attraction and retention is necessary to ensure quality care and outcomes for people living with a disability.

- 8.188 Labor is committed to the effective development and implementation of an All-Abilities Queensland Plan. This will ensure that Queensland experiences the maximum benefit of the NDIS to facilitate communities that are accessible, supportive, and inclusive for all people with disability. Specifically:
- Personal and community relationships – people with disability have strong relationships across all parts of life and are valued member of the community;
 - Recreation and tourism – people with disability can participate in recreational activities of their choice;
 - Working and learning – Queensland provides better learning and work opportunities for people with disability;
 - Key services – health, education, housing and transport services are accessible to people with disability;
 - Leadership and contribution – active participation and leadership in the community.
- 8.189 Labor is committed to reducing the occurrence of violence against people with disability.
- 8.190 Labor is committed to developing a suite of housing solutions for people with disability, including consideration of mandatory building standards.
- 8.191 Labor is committed to getting people with disability who want to work into jobs, through employment, starting small businesses or through volunteering.
- 8.192 Labor is committed to shifting attitudes of business, community and government sectors to be ready, willing and able to benefit from employing, training and having people with disability in leadership positions.
- 8.193 Labor is committed to increasing people with disability’s representation in board, executive, political and governance roles.
- 8.194 Labor will take action to ensure that all buildings in which the Government owns, operates or leases are accessible and contain accessible facilities.
- 8.195 Labor is committed to the smooth, successful, and effective transition of participants, providers, and the disability services sector to the NDIS. Preparedness, workability, and implementation are core components of Labor’s commitment to getting this transition for Queenslanders right.

SOCIAL AND COMMUNITY SERVICES

LABOR VALUES

- 8.196 Labor is committed to building an equal and equitable society that is free from discrimination, poverty and prejudice, by taking action to ensure the structures that promote these features are eradicated.
- 8.197 Labor recognises the social, cultural and economic benefits that a multicultural society delivers to all Queenslanders and is committed to promoting a united, harmonious and inclusive community.
- 8.198 Labor is committed to building a more sustainable social and community services industry in Queensland. Labor recognises that public and not-for-profit organisations are better positioned than for-profit corporations to provide social and community services to vulnerable Queenslanders.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.199 The contribution of all members of society, including people of all ages, people with disabilities, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, and people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds is valuable and should be recognised.
- 8.200 Building a strong and cohesive community requires support for people of all ethnicities, cultural backgrounds and ages to fully participate in the social, economic and cultural fabric of our community.
- 8.201 Social policy must not only address societal inequalities but must also be a vehicle for the empowerment of individuals and communities.
- 8.202 Quality and affordable childcare services should be available for all families throughout the state.
- 8.203 Access to safe, adequate, appropriate and affordable housing is a basic right of all people.
- 8.204 Labor recognises that poor social determinants across Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander populations reflect the impact of European colonisation and that government has a primary role to partner with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and communities to redress existing social, health, political and economic disparities between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and non-Indigenous Australians.
- 8.205 Labor commits to ensuring fresh food and other groceries are readily available and affordable in remote Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.
- 8.206 Labor believes all Queenslanders should have equity of access to services regardless of geographical location. Remote and regional disadvantage should be addressed by place-based responses that build community capacity, well-being and resilience.
- 8.207 Policy development and implementation is undertaken in collaboration with service users and their families/advocates and government and non-government agencies and unions to ensure appropriate, effective and coordinated responses.
- 8.208 Labor will continue its support for multicultural groups and organisations in their efforts to celebrate Queensland's diversity, promote harmony, and strengthen cultural understanding with the wider community.
- 8.209 Labor will support culturally and linguistically diverse Queenslanders in our community by ensuring they have equitable access to services and opportunities.
- 8.210 Labor recognises that public and not-for-profit organisations are better positioned than for-profit corporations to provide support services, including residential care services.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.211 Labor will ensure adequate and sustainable funding of both government and non-government programs as a prerequisite to the provision of quality services.
- 8.212 Labor in Government will:
 - substantially increase the financial penalty that is imposed on a person who is caught illegally using a disabled car parking space;

- introduce a demerit point on the vehicle licence of a person who is caught illegally using a disabled car parking space;
- substantially increase the policing of disabled parking spaces;
- introduce the requirement for consistent and effective signage to be used to identify disabled parking spaces across Queensland; and
- collaborate with local government to develop and implement a comprehensive program to educate the public about the disability car parking system.

- 8.213 Labor will pursue a 'housing first' strategy which ensures access to secure and appropriate housing and flexible supports, to significantly reduce homelessness.
- 8.214 Labor will deliver innovative and collaborative development, with community and private sector partners, of sustainable social, appropriate and affordable housing initiatives.
- 8.215 Labor will continue to address youth unemployment through initiatives and programs that encourage young people to undertake further education and training and that achieve real job outcomes.
- 8.216 Labor will deliver integrated, flexible and innovative programs to address vulnerability and support individual and family capacity to live full and effective lives.
- 8.217 Labor will collaborate with the Commonwealth Government to ensure financial support for approved non-government organisations is sufficient to ensure that award wages and conditions apply to all workers.
- 8.218 Labor will evaluate welfare and community development programs to ensure improved outcomes are achieved and to safeguard the effective and efficient use of public funds.
- 8.219 Labor is committed to supporting local community advocacy and front-line support services through community hubs, providing local people with access to local support networks on an immediate and on-going basis for those individuals and families experiencing difficulties.
- 8.220 Labor will work with the community sector and its workforce representatives to establish a new model for funding community services to better address the needs and interests of the people they support and the local communities in which they work. Funding of community services in our community should be: sustainable; focus on collaboration rather than competition between providers; and support local, appropriate and qualified service provision.
- 8.221 Labor will formalise a process to negotiate treaties between First Nations peoples within the next term of government, in part or whole.
- 8.222 Labor will establish & and authorise a Treaty Working Group within this term of government to consult with First Nation's Peoples and advise the Minister for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Partnerships and the Attorney-General on a process to achieve treaties with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people within Queensland. The group's objective is to provide advice to the Minister for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders Partnerships and the Attorney-General on the process, timing and next steps for discussion that will achieve treaties with First Nations Peoples within Queensland, provide guidance on what material or expertise would support Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander tribes and peoples to participate in this process and provide advice on building broad-based community education and support for a process of agreement making.
- 8.223 The Treaty Working Group shall comprise of, at least, 50% women and include nominees from state-wide Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Community Controlled Organisations, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders under the age of 25, Indigenous Lawyers Association of Queensland, Queensland Law Reform Commission and Traditional Owners from recognised prescribed body corporate entities, traditional owner groups as recognised by Federal Court gazetted in the Native Title Determinations and Cultural Heritage bodies. The Minister may also appoint people based on their personal experience and expertise. The number that the Minister shall appoint should be less than the number of non-ministerial appointed members.

- 8.224 After the formation of such a working group, regional forums will be held to discuss the group's work and the next steps for the Queensland Government.
- 8.225 Labor will work with the social and community services sector, including employers and unions, to establish a portable long service leave scheme for employees.

OLDER QUEENSLANDERS

LABOR VALUES

- 8.226 Labor is committed to ensuring that older Queenslanders are able to lead a healthy and productive life, whether in work, volunteering or in retirement; with access to choice of lifestyle opportunities and care and support, appropriate to their needs

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.227 Queensland should be an age-friendly state where all Queenslanders, of all ages, can stay active, connected and contribute economically, socially and culturally.
- 8.228 Older Queenslanders should be able to live in their communities wherever possible and, where necessary, be supported and maintained by a diverse and flexible range of services designed to enhance their independence, dignity, health and happiness and to assist them in transitions as they age.
- 8.229 Lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning aged people are often isolated and vulnerable citizens in the aged care industry.

Labor will undertake research into the need for aged care services and in-home funding for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning people, including raising the awareness of the needs of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer/questioning older persons in aged care facilities.

- 8.230 Government must promote a greater community understanding of the wider issues concerning positive ageing and of the valuable contribution that older Queenslanders have made and continue to make to society.
- 8.231 A whole-of-government approach is needed on policy affecting older Queenslanders.
- 8.232 The development of a quality aged-care workforce should be actively supported through appropriate award conditions, remuneration and training opportunities.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.233 Labor will upgrade, extend and maintain a comprehensive range of domiciliary support services for older Queenslanders.

- 8.234 Labor will maintain and enhance the services, subsidies and discounts provided to older Queenslanders, where appropriate.
- 8.235 Labor will work towards 'Closing the Gap' in life expectancy for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and work with community-lead organisations to increase life expectancy.
- 8.236 Labor will plan and integrate services for older Queenslanders at a regional level and ensure that these services are adequately funded.
- 8.237 Labor will encourage community support to enable older Queenslanders to remain in their own homes wherever possible.
- 8.238 Labor will prioritise and support the advocacy and policy role of the Office for Seniors to ensure that older Queenslanders are consulted and their needs met and that there is greater government and community awareness of the issues affecting them.
- 8.239 Labor will work actively with employers to address workforce shortages by supporting improved remuneration and conditions for aged care workers, and investing in increased training and development initiatives.

YOUNG QUEENSLANDERS

LABOR VALUES

- 8.240 Labor values the considerable contribution young people make to our society as they participate and contribute to the wider social, economic, educational, cultural and environmental development and prosperity of our state.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.241 Labor believes there should be greater awareness of issues concerning young people and of the valuable contribution young people make to our society.
- 8.242 Labor is committed to fostering an awareness and understanding of the central role of the community in developing policies and programs that focus on issues affecting young people, their status in society, and their relevant cross-cultural needs and concerns.
- 8.243 Labor recognises that young people need the support of caring adults in their transition from dependent to independent living.
- 8.244 Labor is committed to providing a range of support services to young people, their families, other adults who provide care, and those who work towards meeting the diverse needs of the young people of our state.
- 8.245 Labor recognises that to meet the needs of young people, there needs to be a focus on setting priorities, defining goals, coordinating efforts across government departments, and increasing the consultative and cooperation process between government and the community.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.246 Labor will restore the operation of the Young Workers Advisory Service.

- 8.247 Labor will release a comprehensive, state-wide Youth Strategy, after consultation with a broad range of young people from across Queensland.
- 8.248 Labor will encourage young people to be involved in decision making in relation to the social, economic, environmental, cultural, educational, recreational and political life of their community.
- 8.249 Labor will fully recognise and encourage the participation of young people in all relevant aspects of life.
- 8.250 Labor will promote an integrated and coordinated delivery of services to young Queenslanders.
- 8.251 Labor will promote two-way communication between young people, community groups and organisations, and agencies and government departments.
- 8.252 Labor will make resources available in key areas in accordance with the needs of young people, and will identify and target disadvantaged young people in the allocation of these resources.
- 8.253 Labor will undertake research to gain an awareness and understanding of the needs, problems and issues confronting young people, and develop resources for sharing knowledge and information between the government and the community.

ARTS AND CULTURE

LABOR VALUES

- 8.254 Labor recognises that the arts are an essential element of human endeavour. The key values for sustainable development are creativity, heritage, knowledge and diversity.
- 8.255 Labor is aware that the arts, through the specific contributions that they make as knowledge capital and a sector of creativity and exploration, promote inclusive social and economic development, environmental sustainability, harmony, peace, security and wonder. Labor knows that the arts and expressions of heritage and culture are essential elements for the development of people and communities.
- 8.256 Labor values the considerable contribution the arts make to the economy of Queensland and the GDP of the nation.
- 8.257 Labor values the many creative disciplines that Queensland has to offer in all their diversity. Labor recognises the positive impact that the arts have on wellbeing, health and reconciliation.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.258 Labor believes that a vibrant, widespread, accessible and comprehensive arts sector will benefit Queensland culturally and economically.
- 8.259 Involvement in the arts should be available to all Queenslanders and the arts, personal and commercial, should be resourced to enable and foster this.
- 8.260 The availability of arts education at all levels of schooling and tertiary education is essential.
- 8.261 Labor believes in fair dealing and supporting the intellectual property rights of arts professionals.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.262 Labor will maintain a Ministry for the Arts and ensure the Agency is committed to promoting Queensland artists and arts practice in all its diversity.
- 8.263 Labor will encourage and support the arts for their social, cultural and commercial values by policy review, analysis and development and substantial resourcing of the arts and the creative industries. Labor will encourage participation in the arts throughout the state and will support and encourage production of new work of exceptional quality.
- 8.264 Labor will promote the creation of national and international interest in Queensland arts and culture and promote the growth of cultural tourism.
- 8.265 Labor is respectful of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander culture, protocols and practices, and will seek permission from the artist or, if passed (deceased), the artist's family before selling or disposing any gifted Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander art, artworks or artefact.
- 8.266 Labor will foster, support, and actively promote, traditional and contemporary Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander arts, and the training of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples for employment in arts industries and Statutory Authorities.
- 8.267 Labor will ensure Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples participate in the planning decision-making and implementation of policies and programs for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts.
- 8.268 Labor will realistically resource Arts Queensland administration and support offices to be self-sufficient and autonomous. The Labor Government will be advised by consultative committees of representatives from all arts sectors.
- 8.269 Labor will support artists at all stages of their careers, especially on career longevity. Labor's programs of assistance to Queensland's artists and arts workers will be designed with sector input, and will actively encourage collaborations with industries of all types.
- 8.270 Labor will continue peer assessed short and long-term project-based funding for the arts. Support will be focused on proper pay and conditions for artists.
- 8.271 Labor will examine affordable public liability insurance for arts workers and events.
- 8.272 Labor will support the advocacy roles of relevant and effective state peak arts bodies.
- 8.273 Labor will develop programs to increase the publication of Queensland writers.
- 8.274 Labor will support arts and cultural projects that foster inclusive community development. Labor will ensure that arts and cultural projects within communities are designed in consultation with those communities and professional arts workers, and are appropriately resourced.
- 8.275 Labor will maintain regional branches of offices of the arts to service the regions and facilitate effective communication between regional arts workers and organisations and government. Labor will support the Regional Arts Development Fund, and through the ArTour, maintain and strengthen an arts touring program to and from regional and remote communities.
- 8.276 Labor will support diversity in the performing arts in Queensland by providing funding to a range of music, dance and theatre companies. Labor will require those companies to produce work by Queensland artists with specific funds available annually so that companies can commission new works by Queensland resident writers, choreographers and composers.

- 8.277 Labor will require that a percentage of the total value of Queensland Government public works building projects be used to incorporate work by Queensland artists, craftworkers and designers.
- 8.278 Labor will encourage the development of a viable, sustainable and effective state-wide creative industries sector that will be serviced by an expanded Arts Queensland and will encourage the growth of Queensland film and television production and distribution by providing incentives.
- 8.279 Labor will support the education and training of Queensland artists, designers, craftspeople, and theatre, film and television professionals, and support demand driven vocational education and training that is managed collaboratively with industry.
- 8.280 Labor will work with local governments to keep public libraries publicly funded, relevant and useful to the communities they serve. Labor will ensure that all Queensland regional areas have good access to free information sources.
- 8.281 Labor will review and monitor the performance indicators for each statutory authority and support partnerships between Queensland Art Gallery and Gallery of Modern Art, State Library and the Queensland Museum Network, with a particular regard to the needs of rural and remote areas.

SPORT AND RECREATION

LABOR VALUES

- 8.282 Labor recognises that involvement in sport and recreation activities brings together community members and is an essential element in building strong and cohesive communities.
- 8.283 Labor recognises that participation in sport and recreational activities enhances the quality of life of Queenslanders, by delivering social, health and economic benefits.
- 8.284 Labor acknowledges that community clubs play a fundamental role in society. Clubs are providers of quality, secure jobs and Labor is committed to ensure that those clubs that do not reduce weekend and public holiday penalty rates, will be prioritised to receive ongoing support as part of the significant funding they receive from government.

LABOR BELIEFS

- 8.285 Access to, and participation in, organised sporting and recreational activities enhances the quality of life of all Queenslanders. Labor believes in giving Queenslanders access to a wider range of local quality sporting and active recreation infrastructure.
- 8.286 The promotion of the benefits of sport, recreation and leisure activities must be in accordance with the ideals of access, equity and participation.
- 8.287 Increased opportunities and participation in all areas of the sports industry, particularly among young people, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, women, people with a disability and people in regional and rural Queensland, benefits the whole community.
- 8.288 The values of fair play should be embraced, and policies and guidelines should be implemented to ensure a quality sport experience for all participants.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

- 8.289 Labor will provide services and funding to state sporting organisations and peak bodies to facilitate the development of the sport and recreation industry.
- 8.290 Labor will continue to ensure that the sport and recreational needs of young people, women, seniors, people with disabilities, people from non-English speaking backgrounds, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, and people in rural and regional areas are identified and supported in all of its policies and programs.
- 8.291 Labor will facilitate the delivery of well-planned, developed and managed facilities and natural environments to accommodate participation at all levels.
- 8.292 Labor will attract, secure and support major national and international sporting and recreational events that have the capacity to encourage large numbers of participants, spectators and visitors from interstate and overseas.
- 8.293 Labor will encourage families, individuals and communities to adopt healthy lifestyles and enjoy physical activity by participating in sport and recreation.
- 8.294 Labor will facilitate the provision of a wider range of opportunities to encourage more Queenslanders to take regular, moderate, physical activity throughout the various stages of their lives.
- 8.295 Labor will develop specific programs that engage young people, seniors, people with disabilities, women, and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, in sport and recreation activities.
- 8.296 Labor will support programs that involve children in regular physical activity and promote children's sport programs with emphasis on participation, respect for team effort and enjoyment.
- 8.297 Labor will ensure the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games leaves a positive legacy for the entire state, in the form of increased participation in sport, increased tourism and better infrastructure and facilities.
- 8.298 Labor will encourage the use and further establishment of public recreation areas.
- 8.299 Labor will provide sporting and recreation facilities for people with a disability.
- 8.300 Labor will encourage the pursuit of excellence in sports and will continue to support excellence in elite sports through the Queensland Academy of Sport.

ANIMAL WELFARE

LABOR VALUES

- 8.301 Labor recognises that human interactions with animals should be respectful, humane and reflect community expectations.
- 8.302 Labor recognises the important role played by companion animals in the lives of Queenslanders.
- 8.303 Labor recognises the rights of individuals to peacefully and lawfully promote the humane treatment of animals in accordance with their values.

8.304 Labor recognises that animals play integral roles in Queensland communities and sporting and recreational activities, as well as Queensland agricultural, production, export and other commercial industries that depend on animal keeping and animal derived products.

LABOR BELIEFS

8.305 Labor believes that animals should be protected from unjustifiable, unnecessary or unreasonable pain or harm.

8.306 Labor believes in responsible and humane animal husbandry, animal keeping, animal-based recreational activities and animal-derived product industries.

LABOR PRIORITIES IN GOVERNMENT

8.307 Labor will continue to ensure that the care and protection, and responsible use of animals is maintained and meets community expectations.

8.308 Labor will regularly consult with industry, the RSPCA, and the community on the expectations of animal welfare.

8.309 Labor will ensure that legislation and regulation relating to animal welfare remains current and consistent with community expectations.
